Nixon Announces Cease-Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington and Hanoi unveiled today the details of an intricate peace package that limits an impending cease-fire to South Vietnam without insuring a halt to fighting among contending factions in Cambodia and Laos.

A 12-page agreement, to be signed Saturday in Paris before the Vietnam cease-fire takes effect at 7 p.m., EST, that day, does call for the withdrawal of North Vietnamese and other troops from Laos and Cambodia.

"The internal affairs of Cambodia and Laos," said the document, "shall be settled by the people of each of these countries without foreign interference."

In essence, the agreement and four accompanying diplomatic documents, called protocols, hew close to a Washington-Hanoi draft agreement made known last Oct. 26—the day when Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's chief negotiator, proclaimed that "peace is at hand."

The settlement package calls for a four-power international control commission force of 1,160 persons to go to South Vietnam as a peace-keeping unit. The number contrasted with the original Hanoi demand for a ceiling of 250 personnel and an American suggestion of 5,000.

The agreement disclosed for the first time that both the People's Republic of China and the Soviet Union are proposed as participants in an international conference to be held within 30 days to try to guarantee that the peace plan works.

Other conference participants being proposed by the United States and North Vietnam are France, the United Kingdom, the four countries of the international control commission—Hungary, Canada, Indonesia and Poland—and the secretary-general of the United Nations.

Hanoi and Washington also would participate.

Hailed by South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu, and announced in bold terms by Hanoi radio, the peace pact as Nixon outlined it calls for:

—An internationally-supervised cease-fire to take effect at 7 p.m. EST Saturday.

—Release of all American war prisoners within 60 days thereafter, "the fullest possible accounting" for all missing in action, and—during the same period—withdrawal of all American forces from South Vietnam.

Nixon asserted that the agreement, initiated by aide Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho, meets all conditions "that we considered essential for peace with honor."

The chief executive, without going into detail, declared:

"The people of South Vietnam have been guaranteed the right to determine their own future, without outside interference."

All during the decade-long conflict that claimed 350,000 American casualties, this in essence was the major stated goal of U.S. policy.

One who stood by that goal to the point of retiring from the presidency as the war generated increasing homefront dissent was the late Lyndon B. Johnson, whose body was being flown here today to lie in state under the Capitol dome. Of his Democratic predecessor, Nixon said:

"In his life President Johnson endured the vilification of those who sought to portray him as a man of war. But there was nothing he cared about more deeply than achieving a lasting peace in the world ... No one would have welcomed this peace more than he."

Nixon emphasized, in his 11-minute address from the White House, that the United States "will continue to recognize the government of the Republic of Vietnam as the sole legitimate government of South Vietnam."

Release Of All POWs Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger said today U.S. prisoners of war will be turned over to American medical personnel in Hanoi at intervals of two weeks or 15 days after signing of a Vietnam peace agreement Saturday.

A document spelling out the agreement on handling POWs also says that the return "shall be carried out at places convenient to the concerned parties."

Again, the document released by the White House does not say what those places will be.

The places of return, the document said will be agreed upon by a new temporary joint military commission made up of representatives of the United States, North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

The only specific time mentioned in the protocol stipulates that "the return of all captured persons ... shall be completed within 60 days of the signing of the agreement at a rate no slower than the rate of withdrawal from South Vietnam of United States forces and those of other countries."

The document covering civilian as well as military prisoners on both sides provides that the seriously ill, wounded or maimed, and old persons and women shall be returned first.

"The remainder shall be returned either by returning all from one detention place after another or in order of their dates of capture, beginning with those who have been held the longest," the document said.

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird said Tuesday night that teams of U.S. specialists and evacuation aircraft will be ready to go "as soon as possible" after the cease-fire agreement becomes effective Saturday.

Under the protocol, the United States, North Vietnam and the other warring parties are obligated to exchange complete lists of captured military personnel and civilians on Saturday, the same day as the agreement is signed.

This should provide the first hard information on just how many Americans servicemen are held captive and where they are.

The latest Pentagon list shows 587 captured and another 1,335 missing. A big question is how many of these men listed as missing are in POW camps in North Vietnam, South Vietnam or Laos and how many have not been found.

Within 15 days after the cease-fire, the signatories will agree on choosing two or more national Red Cross societies to "visit all places where captured military personnel and foreign civilians are held."

The United States long has contended that the North Vietnamese have violated Geneva Conventions on treatment of prisoners of war by refusing to allow the International Red Cross to inspect POW camps.

The protocol appears to open the way for American military men to enter North Vietnam as part of the prisoner exchange.

It said the four party joint military commission will send military teams "to observe the return of the persons ... at each place in Vietnam where such persons are being returned, and at the last detention places from which these persons will be taken to the places of return."

Cautious Praise Follows Announcement Of Truce

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters and critics alike of U.S. Indochina policies have hailed the announcement of a Vietnam peace pact, but many predict the struggle for South Vietnam will go on.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, a longtime war critic, said the agreement announced Tuesday night by President Nixon "is no more than a truce, and it may last no longer than the earlier truce in 1954 when the French withdrew."

Sens. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, and William Proxmire, D-Wis., said the terms appear to have been available last October, before the Paris peace talks broke off and U.S. bombing of North Vietnam resumed.

"The key question," added Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, "is can this peace last? Can it lead to a healing in South Vietnam?" He said it would depend mainly on the will of the nations involved.

And Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., asked why Nixon referred only to Vietnam. "But what of Laos, Cambodia, Thailand and the high seas?" She said Congress should ensure "there can be no continued presence in Indochina, no renewal of bombing, no further military aid to the Thieu regime."

Republicans who have stood by Nixon's war policies led the chorus of praise for him. "That this peace is an honorable peace is due solely to one man—the resolute man who is Richard Nixon," said House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford.

"Never before in American history has a president acted so courageously not only in the face of opposition from an enemy abroad but also in the face of unprecedented criticism at home," said Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

"This is a day for which each of us should be thankful to the Lord God," said Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.

From the GOP critics came a more cautious praise.

"I think and hope it will last for a long time," said Sen. George Aiken of Vermont, senior Republican.

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., cosponsor of several Senate moves to cut off war funds, said he hopes "this settlement will not just complete the deAmericanization of the war but yield a permanent peace for all the people of Indochina. I feel this is more a time for meditation than for celebration."

Congressional Democratic leaders who have stood with Nixon also applauded.

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, praised Nixon "for toughing it out."

Majestic Service Honors Johnson In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just 100 hours after ushering the 37th President into a new term, the nation's capital offered a mournful and majestic farewell today to the 36th.

The body of Lyndon Baines Johnson was to be flown from the LBJ Library in Austin, Tex., for a full-honors procession up Constitution Avenue and one last turn through the doors of Congress.

The ceremonial march, to the muffled cadence of drums draped in black and the clatter of the traditional, horse-drawn artillery caisson, was set to begin at 1:30 p.m.

President Nixon and a long list of other dignitaries planned to follow the limousine of the Johnson family in the slowmoving cortege.

At the Capitol, Johnson's flag-draped coffin was to be borne through the Senate hallway to the Rotunda, then placed upon the Lincoln catafalque—just as eight presidents before him—to receive public mourners throughout the chill winter night.

The body will be moved to the National Christian City Church, about two miles away, at about 8:30 a.m.

ROUNDTOWN

CIRCLEVILLE Board of Education Tuesday night approved the cancellation of classes in all city schools Thursday, a day of mourning for President Johnson.

County Superintendent Ed Martin today announced that all schools in the county districts would close tomorrow for a full day ... Classes at Brook-Yates school will also be dismissed for the day ... All the schools will reopen Friday for regular classes.

Postal deliveries will not be made Thursday as post office employees take part in the national day of mourning, but the post office lobby will be open for access to boxes ... City and county offices announced yesterday that they would close.

A SPECIAL request for O-Positive blood has been received from Dr. Melanie Kennedy, medical director of the Columbus Red Cross Blood Center, needed for open-heart surgery at Children's Hospital, Columbus.

Thursday for a midmorning service at which Johnson will be eulogized by his friend and former assistant, Marvin Watson.

Then the Johnsons will be returned to Texas via presidential aircraft for the afternoon burial near the LBJ Ranch.

With the last creak of leather and final clomp of horses on the journey to the Capitol, Johnson was to receive a 21-gun salute—a thunder heard only four days ago, at the same spot, for Nixon's inauguration.

A brief memorial service, begun by the U.S. Army Band playing four "Ruffles and Flourishes" and "Hail to the Chief," was to follow. Nixon planned to lay a presidential wreath; Dean Rusk, Johnson's secretary of state, and Rep. J.J. Pickle, his local congressman, were to speak between hymns.

The sleek, black gun carriage bearing the late president was to be trailed by the same caparisoned horse, Black Jack, remembered by millions of Americans for his riderless journey in the funeral march for John F. Kennedy. Now graying at 26, Black Jack also carried the reversed cavalry boots and silver saber for Herbert Hoover and Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Stilled bands and marching units from each of the military services and academies were to lead the caisson, with the limousines bearing, in order, the Johnson family, the presidential party, other chiefs of state, the vice president, congressional leaders, the Supreme Court, the diplomatic corps and other government leaders.

2,996 Ohioans Killed In 12-Year Viet War

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Adjutant General's records show that 2,996 Ohioans were killed in the Vietnam War. The first was Air Force Capt. Robert David Bennett of Cincinnati, killed Nov. 5, 1962.

In all, 151,600 Ohioans served in the 12-year war.

Weather

Mostly sunny and cool today, high near 40. Clear and cool tonight, low near 30. Mostly sunny and warmer tomorrow, high near 50. High Tuesday, 36; low, 23.

MEMORIAL — The bell tower at Circleville High School is a memorial to Capt. William Barthelmas Jr., the first Pickaway County resident to die in Vietnam. There are other memorials around the county to the 16 who died in the 12-year-long conflict.

16 From County Die In Vietnam

Sixteen young men from Pickaway County died as a result of this nation's 12-year struggle for peace in Indochina, adding to Ohio's 2,996 war dead.

They are: Capt. William J. Barthelmas, Jr., Air Force, who died July 27, 1965; Lance Corporal Ronnie Ash, Marine Corps, who died Oct. 8, 1965; Keith Patterson, who died Oct. 13, 1969; Corporal Arnold L. Coonrod, Army, who died Jan. 1, 1968; PFC Franklin E. Sollars, Army, who died Jan. 19, 1968; Warrant Officer Paul J. Hill, Army, who died May 12, 1968; Corporal Richard S. Brown, Marine Corps, who died July 5, 1968; Staff Sergeant Leslie L. Brucker, Army, who died Aug. 25, 1968; PFC Thomas Conkel, Army, who died Dec. 4, 1968;

Sergeant Paul A. Stone, Army, who died Jan. 14, 1969; Sergeant Michael R. Spangler, Army, who died Jan. 13, 1969; Corporal Richard P. Speakman, Jr., Marine Corps, who died June 26, 1969; PFC John E. Wright, Army, who died Sept. 23, 1969; Specialist 4 James D. Smith, Army, who died May 5, 1970; Corporal Roy L. Carter, Army, who died May 20, 1970; John Featherolf, who died July 22, 1971.

Laurelville High School graduate Jim Lehman died of non-battle injuries Mar. 3, 1968, while in the Army, and James Hoover, a Logan Elm graduate, died Nov. 1, 1965.

They are part of 45,928 Americans killed in the war. An additional 10,298 died as a result of non-hostile action. Ohio sent 151,600 men to the war zone.

Happy Soldiers Celebrate Announcement Of Truce

SAIGON (AP) — Minutes after President Nixon announced the cease-fire, a 747 jet took off from Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport and a group of jubilant GIs on the ground shouted to no one in particular: "We'll be on the next one, baby!"

"Did you see that 747?" exclaimed S. Sgt. Carl Moore of Savannah, Ga. "I can see myself in it too. I can't stop getting chill bumps — I'm not lying."

For many of the 23,000 Americans left in South Vietnam, today was a time for celebration. But for some, the President's announcement sparked disbelief and skepticism that there ever could be peace in Indochina.

There appeared to be a big run on booze, beer and soda as the troops stocked up for instantly planned parties. Several GIs emerged from the PX carrying brand new luggage and one called over his shoulder, "I don't want anything to do with this stupid war! I'm getting out of here!"

Across South Vietnam, American personnel heard Nixon's announcement broadcast live over the Armed Forces Vietnam Network.

Though most of the troops talked about going home to their wives and families, some said they expected to be transferred to other Asian bases.

"I won't be making as much money as I used to, that's for sure," said Spec. 4 Glenn Richter of San Jose, Calif. "No combat pay, no overseas pay, no flight pay, no bonus pay. I'll just be a poor, broke civilian when I get back."

But money was incidental to S. Sgt. Robert Justice of Cleveland, Ohio. "It's all over — it's over," he laughed, dancing a few steps in the street. "A delayed Christmas present."

"It's great — wonderful," said Lt. Col. James Krahicek, chief of operations for 7th Air Force Search and Rescue Operations. "But it's business as usual for us until the cease-fire is consummated. Then, we'll celebrate."

Red Attacks Are Doubled During Night

SAIGON (AP) — Communist attacks in South Vietnam doubled overnight just before the announcement of the cease-fire agreement. South Vietnamese claimed the Communists were trying for last-minute gains before the truce takes effect this weekend.

There was widely scattered ground fighting, and U.S. and South Vietnamese planes were operating as usual. Communiques reported 147 North Vietnamese and 12 South Vietnamese killed.

U.S. sources indicated that American bombing strikes would begin tapering off Thursday but that some strikes probably would be flown until just before the start of the cease-fire at 8 a.m. Sunday, Saigon time, or 7 p.m. EST Saturday.

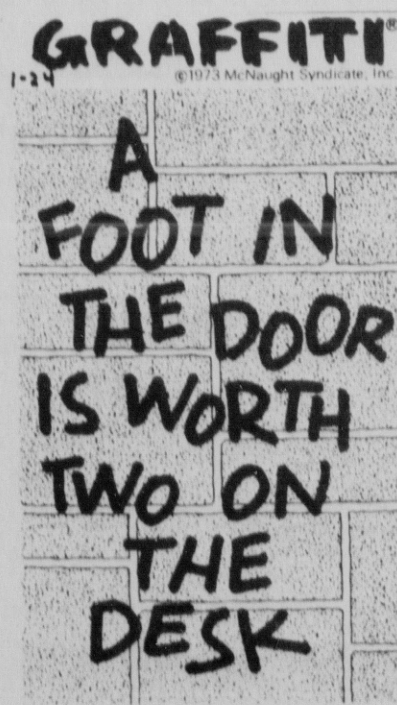

The sources said it appeared likely that U.S. advisers still in the field with South Vietnamese troops and assigned to provincial and district teams would begin pulling out in the next few days.

At the daily briefing for correspondents, a spokesman for the U.S. Command turned aside questions on whether standdown orders had gone out to American airmen and ground advisers.

"There has been no significant change in U.S. air operations, and the U.S. Command is continuing its function," said Maj. Jere K. Forbus.

The command reported 348 fighter-bomber strikes, more than half of them in the northern provinces, and 87 B52 strikes.

The South Vietnamese command reported 95 "enemy-initiated incidents" in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today, bearing out earlier predictions by senior commanders that the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong would launch at least one more major effort to gain territory and control of population before the cease-fire.

"It's great — wonderful," said Lt. Col. James Krahicek, chief of operations for 7th Air Force Search and Rescue Operations. "But it's business as usual for us until the cease-fire is consummated. Then, we'll celebrate."

Red Attacks Are Doubled During Night

SAIGON (AP) — Communist attacks in South Vietnam doubled overnight just before the announcement of the cease-fire agreement. South Vietnamese claimed the Communists were trying for last-minute gains before the truce takes effect this weekend.

There was widely scattered ground fighting, and U.S. and South Vietnamese planes were operating as usual. Communiques reported 147 North Vietnamese and 12 South Vietnamese killed.

U.S. sources indicated that American bombing strikes would begin tapering off Thursday but that some strikes probably would be flown until just before the start of the cease-fire at 8 a.m. Sunday, Saigon time, or 7 p.m. EST Saturday.

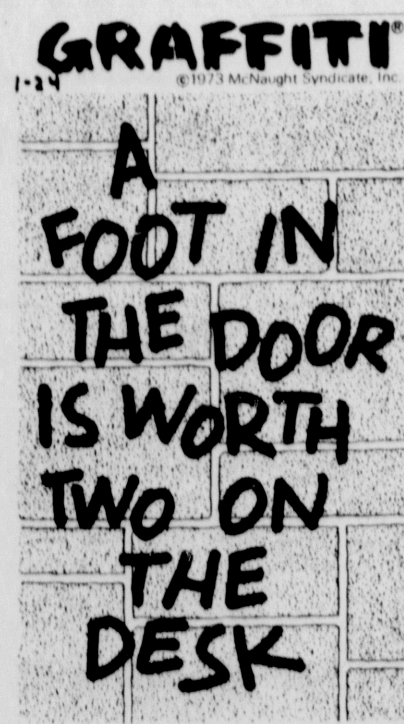

The sources said it appeared likely that U.S. advisers still in the field with South Vietnamese troops and assigned to provincial and district teams would begin pulling out in the next few days.

At the daily briefing for correspondents, a spokesman for the U.S. Command turned aside questions on whether standoff orders had gone out to American airmen and ground advisers.

"There has been no significant change in U.S. air operations, and the U.S. Command is continuing its function," said Maj. Jere K. Forbus.

The command reported 348 fighter-bomber strikes, more than half of them in the northern provinces, and 87 B52 strikes.

The South Vietnamese command reported 95 "enemy-initiated incidents" in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today, bearing out earlier predictions by senior commanders that the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong would launch at least one major effort to gain territory and control of population before the cease-fire.

Mitchell And Stans Linked To Watergate Money Flow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former Treasury Secretary Maurice H. Stans approved payments to the man charged with a political-espionage conspiracy against Democrats, the Watergate jury has been told.

The statement Tuesday of Hugh W. Sloan Jr., former treasurer of President Nixon's re-election campaign, was the first testimony that Mitchell and Stans are connected with the fund allegedly used to finance the political spying.

Sloan said he gave a total of $199,000 in cash to G. Gordon Liddy, the man accused of leading the operations which culminated in the break-in last June 17 at Democratic national World OpinionMainWeapon For Enforcing Cease-Fire?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new international supervisory commission may have to depend on world opinion as its chief weapon against cheating on the Vietnam cease-fire.

Many U.S. military officers doubt this would be enough to deter both sides, particularly the Communists, from maneuvering for advantage in what is likely to be a continuing struggle for South Vietnam.

In announcing the imminent end of the war, President Nixon Tuesday night called on the North Vietnamese, the Viet Cong and the South Vietnamese to refrain from cheating.

"All parties must now see to it that this is a peace that lasts," Nixon said. Seeing that the cease-fire rules are obeyed is the job that will fall to the four-nation supervisory commission.

Although the commission's charter was not disclosed, there have been indications that Canadian, Indonesian, Hungarian and Polish truce inspectors may be allowed to move with relative freedom in both Communist and non-Communist areas of the country.

The supervisors also may be empowered to take the initiative in looking for cease-fire violations rather than waiting for formal complaints from the South Vietnamese or the North Vietnamese.

But Canadian sources have indicated they do not expect the international supervisors to be given any real enforcement powers. Rather, they anticipate making public reports on violations in hopes of bringing world

Court Overrules Zoning Board

Judge William Ammer, in an opinion on an appeal from the Darby Twp. Board of Zoning Appeals, ruled the order and decision of the zoning board refusing B. L. Galdwell permission to have a mobile home on property he owned in the township, was illegal, unreasonable and unsupported by substantial evidence.

The court ordered the board to grant Galdwell permission to place a mobile home on the land.

Spangler To Speak To LE Adult Ag Class

Ron Hoffman, vocational agriculture instructor at Logan Elm High School, announced the Jan. 29 adult class will concern changes in federal farm programs.

The Canadians reportedly have been anxious that each of the national contingents be authorized to make such reports separately—without any other national groups threatening a veto.

Canada recalls it was just that kind of a veto that helped make the old International Control Commission (ICC) a failure in preventing violations of the 1954 Geneva agreement that was supposed to have ended the Indochina war 19 years ago. Canada has served on the moribund ICC along with Communist Poland and avowedly neutralist India.

Thieu Sees Dangerous Days Ahead

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu told the 17½ million South Vietnamese today that "there is no guarantee that the forthcoming peace will be an ideal and lasting peace." He forecast a political struggle as difficult and dangerous as the past 18 years of war.

Thieu made a 45-minute radio address at the same time President Nixon was telling the American public of the agreement initialed in Paris Tuesday.

The Viet Cong broadcast a pledge that it would "seriously carry out the peace treaty," and North vietnam said in a communique that it hopes the agreement will ensure stable peace in Vietnam and will contribute to the preservation of lasting peace in Indochina and Southeast Asia. But Thieu accused the Communists of not having "good will for peace" and warned his people:

"As I have frequently told you, no agreement will provide a 100 per cent guarantee for peace, and no international body may be considered to be able to give us a 100 per cent guarantee for peace."

"Only our military force," he continued, "only our people's real political strength, only our economic power, and only our determination of militant solidarity among the 17½ million nationalist people in the South will be the most effective and solid guarantee."

Forest Cemetery Board Holds Annual Meeting

The annual membership meeting of The Forest Cemetery Association was held Monday for the election of trustees and transaction of other association business.

Three trustees, whose terms of office expired, were reelected. They are: Harry W. Heffner, Clarence Radcliffe and George D. Young.

Other members of the Board of Trustees are Durward D. Dowden, Robert S. Elsea, Charles Pugsley and Howard N. Stevenson.

The trustees met following the membership meeting, organized, and transacted routine business. Officers elected for the year 1973 are Durward D. Dowden, president; Robert S. Elsea, vice president; and Mary E. Weffler, treasurer.

Nolan Sims Jr., was employed as superintendent, Melvin A. Yates was reemployed as board secretary and accountant and Mary E. Weffler was reemployed as office secretary.

Sims, the newly elected superintendent, has been in training for his new position for the past year. Since 1954 he served as fire chief and security officer at the Clinton Air Force Base, Wilmington, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Sims reside at 120 W. High Street.

headquarters in the Watergate complex.

But Sloan testified he had no idea what happened to the money he said deputy campaign director Jeb Magruder authorized him to turn over to Liddy.

"You didn't question Mr. Magruder about the purpose of the $199,000?" U.S. Dist. Court Judge John J. Sirica asked Sloan.

"No, sir," Sloan replied. "I verified with Mr. Stans and Mr. Mitchell he was authorized to make those."

"You verified it with who?" Sirica asked.

"Secretary Stans, the finance chairman, and I didn't directly, but he verified it with John Mitchell, the campaign chairman," Sloan said.

"This $199,000 could be turned over to Mr. Liddy is what you are saying?" Sirica asked.

"Not the specific amount, but Mr. Magruder, his authorization was authorization enough to turn over the sums in question," Sloan responded.

Magruder and Herbert Porter, former director of scheduling for the re-election campaign, testified they had asked Liddy to set up an intelligence operation to discover any possible dangers to Republicans campaigning for the Nixon ticket last year and to check on security of the party's national convention.

But both men denied ordering the wiretapping and burglary with which Liddy, former counsel to both Nixon committees, and James W. McCord Jr., Nixon campaign security chief, are charged.

Jury Rules For Kuhn

Cleuts Kuhn, defendant in the damage suit heard Monday in Common Pleas Court, was awarded the judgment of the jury.

All eight jurors signed the verdict in favor of Kuhn, who was defendant in a civil action filed by Lawrence A. Bond. Bond was seeking damages, amounting to $250,000 in his complaint, for injuries and losses he suffered as a result of a fall from a ladder while helping to install siding on Kuhn's E. Main St. home.

The decision against Bond's suit for damages were signed by jury foreman William Hinkle and other members, Charles Bartholomew, Viola Louise Morpeth, Lucille Greene, Frank Webbe, James S. Arnold, Letitia Overly and Everett Peters.

January Is Blood Donor Month

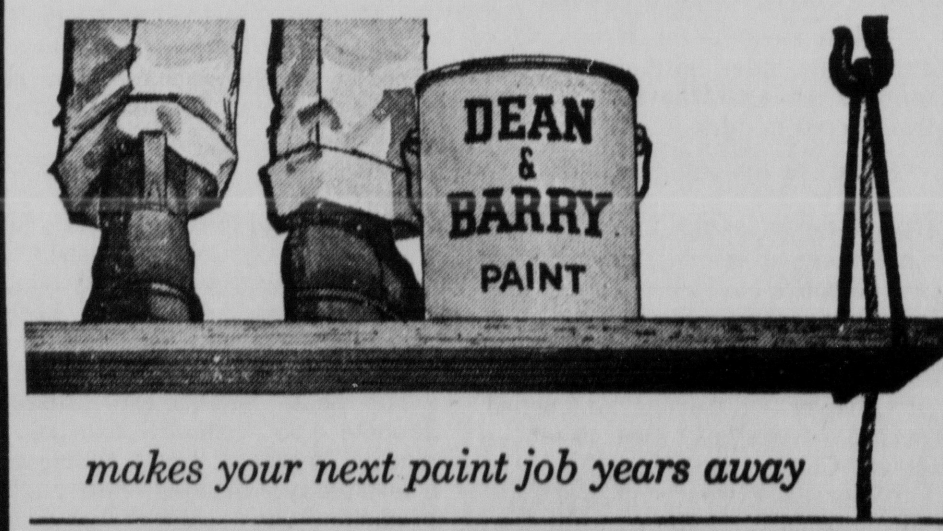

January has been proclaimed Blood Donor Month in Ohio by Governor John J. Gilligan to honor loyal blood donors and to start others on the helpful habit of giving blood.

In commenting on the observance, Dean Dugger, administrative director of the Central Ohio Red Cross Blood Program said, "We urgently need more new donors in the Central Ohio Region to meet increased demands for blood and to offset a certain drop-off of donors because of age or illness."

"Recently" he continued, "we have come up against serious shortages and distribution problems, caused by the increased need, without a comparable increase in donations. To encourage donor participation, the Regional Blood Program Committee, made up of representatives from each county, agreed to an increased quota of 135 units per bloodmobile visit. The previous quota was 125."

"With approximately 480 bloodmobile visits per year, this increased quota would, ideally, mean an increased collection of 4,880 units of blood a year or 400 units a month. If we could achieve this goal, we would be able to maintain a good supply," he said.

C. P. Pfleeger, Pickaway County Blood Program Chairman of the American Red Cross, added that the next bloodmobile will visit the area on Thursday, January 25, at Community United Methodist Church and encourage donors to respond to help meet the new quota. For appointments call: 474-5736.

"You didn't question Mr. Magruder about the purpose of the $199,000?" U.S. Dist. Court Judge John J. Sirica asked Sloan.

"No, sir," Sloan replied. "I verified with Mr. Stans and Mr. Mitchell he was authorized to make those."

"You verified it with who?" Sirica asked.

"Secretary Stans, the finance chairman, and I didn't directly, but he verified it with John Mitchell, the campaign chairman," Sloan said.

"This $199,000 could be turned over to Mr. Liddy is what you are saying?" Sirica asked.

"Not the specific amount, but Mr. Magruder, his authorization was authorization enough to turn over the sums in question," Sloan responded.

Magruder and Herbert Porter, former director of scheduling for the re-election campaign, testified they had asked Liddy to set up an intelligence operation to discover any possible dangers to Republicans campaigning for the Nixon ticket last year and to check on security of the party's national convention.

But both men denied ordering the wiretapping and burglary with which Liddy, former counsel to both Nixon committees, and James W. McCord Jr., Nixon campaign security chief, are charged.

World Opinion Main Weapon For Enforcing Cease-Fire?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new international supervisory commission may have to depend on world opinion as its chief weapon against cheating on the Vietnam cease-fire.

Many U.S. military officers doubt this would be enough to deter both sides, particularly the Communists, from maneuvering for advantage in what is likely to be a continuing struggle for South Vietnam.

In announcing the imminent end of the war, President Nixon Tuesday night called on the North Vietnamese, the Viet Cong and the South Vietnamese to refrain from cheating.

"All parties must now see it that this is a peace that lasts," Nixon said.

Seeing that the cease-fire rules are obeyed is the job that will fall to the four-nation supervisory commission.

Although the commission's charter was not disclosed, there have been indications that Canadian, Indonesian, Hungarian and Polish truce inspectors may be allowed to move with relative freedom in both Communist and non-Communist areas of the country.

The supervisors also may be empowered to take the initiative in looking for cease-fire violations rather than waiting for formal complaints from the South Vietnamese or the North Vietnamese.

But Canadian sources have indicated they do not expect the international supervisors to be given any real enforcement powers. Rather, they anticipate making public reports on violations in hopes of bringing world opinion to bear against the offenders.

The Canadians reportedly have been anxious that each of the national contingents be authorized to make such reports separately—without any other national groups threatening a veto.

Canada recalls it was just that kind of a veto that helped make the old International Control Commission (ICC) a failure in preventing violations of the 1954 Geneva agreement that was supposed to have ended the Indochina war 19 years ago. Canada has served on the moribund ICC along with Communist Poland and avowedly neutralist India.

Thieu Sees Dangerous Days Ahead

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu told the 17 1/2 million South Vietnamese today that "there is no guarantee that the forthcoming peace will be an ideal and lasting peace." He forecast a political struggle as difficult and dangerous as the past 18 years of war.

Thieu made a 45-minute radio address at the same time President Nixon was telling the American public of the agreement initialed in Paris Tuesday.

The Viet Cong broadcast a pledge that it would "seriously carry out the peace treaty," and North Vietnam said in a communique that it hopes the agreement will ensure stable peace in Vietnam and will contribute to the preservation of lasting peace in Indochina and Southeast Asia. But Thieu accused the Communists of not having "good will for peace" and warned his people:

"As I have frequently told you, no agreement will provide a 100 per cent guarantee for peace, and no international body may be considered to be able to give us a 100 per cent guarantee for peace."

"Only our military force," he continued, "only our people's real political strength, only our economic power, and only our determination of militant solidarity among the 17 1/2 million nationalist people in the South will be the most effective and solid guarantee."

Forest Cemetery Board Holds Annual Meeting

The annual membership meeting of The Forest Cemetery Association was held Monday for the election of trustees and transaction of other association business.

Three trustees, whose terms of office expired, were reelected. They are: Harry W. Heffner, Clarence Radcliffe and George D. Young.

Other members of the Board of Trustees are Durward D. Dowden, Robert S. Elsea, Charles Pugsley and Howard N. Stevenson.

The trustees met following the membership meeting, organized, and transacted routine business. Officers elected for the year 1973 are Durward D. Dowden, president; Robert S. Elsea, vice president; and Mary E. Weffler, treasurer.

Nolan Sims Jr., was employed as superintendent, Melvin A. Yates was reemployed as board secretary and accountant and Mary E. Weffler was reemployed as office secretary.

Sims, the newly elected superintendent, has been in training for his new position for the past year. Since 1954 he served as fire chief and security officer at the Clinton Air Force Base, Wilmington, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Sims reside at 120 W. High Street.

A Page Of Opinion

Belt 'Encouragement'

So far has the campaign for vehicular safety come in the last few years that seat belts now are just another standard accessory. Little attention would be paid the belts today, if enough people had forged the habit of using them.

All accident statistics and polls, however, tell a different story. It is one of benign neglect. The safety restraint with the greatest potential for curbing both death and injury in an accident more often than not dangles useless because it is unused.

Campaigns one after the other are waged to encourage seat belt use. Gadgets are invented which would make cars inoperative unless seat belts are securely fastened. With all of it, the motoring public has not been impressed.

Something more dramatic and forceful is required if the full seat belt potential is to be realized. Australia discovered a similar reluctance and made wearing of the belts mandatory under penalty, in some states, of fines of $24 for each time a passenger or driver is caught without his belt in place.

As a result, traffic fatalities have been reduced 23 percent in New South Wales, Australia's largest state. It is possible to gain compliance with safety procedures, even if the incentive has to be in the form of a threatened penalty.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

On a Saturday morning in the early spring of last year, I, with my wife and one of my grandsons, journeyed to Williamsport.

The day was warm and sunny, one of those that seem to say: "What's the hurry?"

I slowed down to a snail's pace, making it possible to scan the countryside as we rode along. Lanes taking off at tangents tended to lead the eye right up to the very front doors of the farm homes along the way.

Geometric patterns of green pastureland lay alongside those of newly-plowed fields. The trees of woods and orchards made pleasing verticals on the landscape.

The impressions left by what I had observed on that spring morning brought to mind the title and words of the song — "America, the Beautiful." Those disillusionments engendered by the ugly and the turbulent tend to fall away, leaving behind with me the true essence of that which makes my homeland truly beautiful.

The results of the husbandry and the love of the soil evident in those sweeps of farmland was proof enough that at the core of things there are those among us who really care. Those who, quietly and scarcely noticed, keep America's breadbasket full to overflowing.

Respectfully yours,
FRED BOWSER
233½ N. Scioto St.
Circleville, Ohio

Dear Editor:

Back in 1910, my father — looking for an ideal community in which to settle, go into business, marry and bring up a family — discovered Circleville, during a train excursion trip out of Toledo, Ohio.

To him, Circleville seemed a rare marvel among communities, even in those days. Here were people enterprising and proud.

Circleville impressed him also because it was nestled in the fertile farmland of the Pickaway Plains, yet it was very close to the metropolitan areas. Circleville then was celebrating its 100th anniversary.

Dad always felt he had made an excellent choice. He found that Circleville people saw each other as fellow human beings, willing to face mutual problems and work together for solutions.

Dad felt this community's people showed a gratifying concern for the welfare of their fellow citizens.

I have always shared these views, too. Circleville and Pickaway County's people are the greatest!

Their concern for their fellow men was vividly shown to me during my recent illness.

While hearing court cases in Cleveland, I became ill and was rushed to Cleveland's St. Vincent Hospital, where I had to stay for almost six weeks.

Cards and letters numbered in the hundreds, in addition to frequent phone calls and floral expressions.

More words cannot express my gratitude for these remembrances.

When you're 170 miles away from home and seriously ill, these acts of kindness and concern have a titanic role in helping you tread the road to recovery.

So, I want to say thank you, each and every one. May God bless you all as you begin a New Year with renewed hope, dignity and a solid foundation of mutual understanding.

I have been reassured—first hand—of the really great discovery Dad made when he landed in Circleville many years ago.

Sincerely yours,

LAFF - A - DAY

"Could you take the Joneses right away?"

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

How soon after a cold or an attack of tonsillitis is it safe to send a child back to school?

Mrs. L. A., Wis.

Dear Mrs. A.:

There are, of course, no set rules, but fever is an excellent guide to the recovery level of a cold, gripple, the flu, and sinus infections. This guide is just as good for adolescents and adults as it is for children.

A fairly safe rule is to wait until the temperature is normal for two full days before sending a child back to school. Adults, too, should not return to full activity until they are free of fever for this time.

Any infection leaves a child or an adult with a sense of devitalization and weakness. Many people notice that even after a relatively insignificant infection their fatigue is marked. Sometimes the slightest exertion makes it necessary to return to bed to rest.

Even when the child does return to school, and when the adult returns to work, full activity should be avoided for at least a week. During this time, added nourishment, vitamins, increased protein, and longer periods of rest will help recover one's normal stamina.

Patients often ask doctors if antibiotics have a weakening effect. Actually, it is the illness for which the antibiotics are given rather than the antibiotics themselves which contributes to the sense of weakness.

Is there any way to anticipate side effects from a new drug?

Miss J. E., Vt.

Dear Miss E.:

All drugs, simple and complicated, may call forth an unusual reaction in some people. Even aspirin, considered one of the safest drugs and certainly one of the most commonly used, should not be taken by some people.

These reactions need not necessarily be allergic ones, but rather due to some strange body reaction to them.

By past experience, doctors learn that certain drugs may be more toxic than others for certain patients. For this reason, doctors tell their patients the purpose of the drug and warn them to be on the lookout for any unusual response.

When one is given a new drug, any unusual or unexpected discomfort should immediately be reported to the doctor. Until permission is granted it is wise to stop taking the drug.

Can emotional upsets be the cause of accidents? I hardly know a month that my brother doesn't run into some kind of trouble.

Mr. R. R., Ala.

Dear Mr. R.:

Emotional stress makes some people more prone to accidents.

In the home, in the office, in the factory, or while driving a car, tension and psychological turbulence can be responsible for repeated minor and major accidents. Large industry is now carefully evaluating the psychological structure of all people who have such a history.

A Page Of Opinion

Belt 'Encouragement'

So far has the campaign for vehicular safety come in the last few years that seat belts now are just another standard accessory. Little attention would be paid the belts today, if enough people had forged the habit of using them.

All accident statistics and polls, however, tell a different story. It is one of benign neglect. The safety restraint with the greatest potential for curbing both death and injury in an accident more often than not dangles useless because it is unused.

Campaigns one after the other are waged to encourage seat belt use. Gadgets are invented which would make cars inoperative unless seat belts are securely fastened. With all of it, the motorist public has not been impressed.

Something more dramatic and forceful is required if the full seat belt potential is to be realized. Australia discovered a similar reluctance and made wearing of the belts mandatory under penalty, in some states, of fines of $24 for each time a passenger or driver is caught without his belt in place.

As a result, traffic fatalities have been reduced 23 percent in New South Wales, Australia's largest state. It is possible to gain compliance with safety procedures, even if the incentive has to be in the form of a threatened penalty.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

On a Saturday morning in the early spring of last year, I, with my wife and one of my grandsons, journeyed to Williamsport.

The day was warm and sunny, one of those that seem to say: "What's the hurry?"

I slowed down to a snail's pace, making it possible to scan the countryside as we rode along. Lanes taking off at tangents tended to lead the eye right up to the very frontdoors of the farm homes along the way.

Geometric patterns of green pastureland lay alongside those of newly-plowed fields. The trees of woods and orchards made pleasing verticals on the landscape.

The impressions left by what I had observed on that spring morning brought to mind the title and words of the song — "America, the Beautiful." Those disillusionments engendered by the ugly and the turbulent began to fall away, leaving behind with me the true essence of that which makes my homeland truly beautiful.

The results of the husbandry and the love of the soil evident in those sweeps of farmland was proof enough that at the core of things there are those among us who really care. Those who, quietly and scarcely noticed, keep America's breadbasket full to overflowing.

Respectfully yours,
FRED BOWSER

Dear Editor:

Back in 1910, my father — looking for an ideal community in which to settle, go into business, marry and bring up a family — discovered Circleville, during a train excursion trip out of Toledo, Ohio.

To him, Circleville seemed a rare marvel among communities, even in those days. Here were people enterprising and proud.

Circleville impressed him also because it was nestled in the fertile farmland of the Pickaway Plains, yet it was very close to the metropolitan areas. Circleville then was celebrating its 100th anniversary.

Dad always felt he had made an excellent choice. He found that Circleville people saw each other as fellow human beings, willing to face mutual problems and work together for solutions.

Dad felt this community's people showed a gratifying concern for the welfare of their fellow citizens.

I have always shared these views, too. Circleville and Pickaway County's people are the greatest!

Their concern for their fellow men was vividly shown to me during my recent illness.

While hearing court cases in Cleveland, I became ill and was rushed to Cleveland's St. Vincent Hospital, where I had to stay for almost six weeks.

Cards and letters numbered in the hundreds, in addition to frequent phone calls and floral expressions.

More words cannot express my gratitude for these remembrances.

When you're 170 miles away from home and seriously ill, these acts of kindness and concern have a titanic role in helping you tread the road to recovery.

So, I want to say thank you, each and every one. May God bless you all as you begin a New Year with renewed hope, dignity and a solid foundation of mutual understanding.

I have been reassured—first hand—of the really great discovery Dad made when he landed in Circleville many years ago.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It is predictable as the phases of the year: When the economy is vigorous lenders are amiable. They might even plot little schemes to encourage you to borrow.

Most families don't need a great deal of encouragement to borrow when times are good and the future looks even better. It is then that they have the confidence to go into debt.

And while the debts build up, the rapidly expanding economy packs more income into the wallets of borrowers, who though pressed from time to time — that is, every month — are therefore able to pay the bills.

But then comes another predictable phase: Some borrowers and lenders begin to have a few financial scrapes. This is decidedly more frightening to the lender, and he begins to have doubts.

Shortly thereafter some lenders begin to raise questions about "the quality of debt." High quality debt is when bills are repaid on time. The ratio of delinquencies and failures reduces that quality.

The debt quality is lowered, for instance, when a businessman delays paying a bill within the allotted 30 days or whatever it may be, so that he can use his creditor's money interest free.

This is one tipoff that a boom might be developing strains, that buyers and borrowers might be exceeding their capacity to pay. The reason the businessman can't pay his bills might be that his customers aren't paying theirs.

In the consumer area, the signs of deterioration show up as mortgage delinquencies and foreclosures, and slowness in repayment of installment loans at department stores and other retail outlets.

One of the first expressions of concern came at the annual convention this month of the National Association of Home Builders in Houston. "The quality of personal credit," said a banker, "may already have suffered some deterioration."

The latest data on mortgage delinquency, said Ira O. Scott, Jr., executive vice president of the Savings Bank Association of New York, "are not so serious as to indicate a crisis, but they do signal that credit quality is becoming more heavily strained."

Mortgage delinquency, he noted, rose to 3.82 per cent of the 4.5 million mortgages studied by the Mortgage Bankers Association, a figure he said was higher than at any other time in at least 10 years.

Scott maintains that early warnings seem to be flashing in the installment loan area. In a recession, he explained, it is typical for delinquencies of 30 days and over to rise sharply to around 2 per cent.

As economic conditions improve, he adds, the delinquency rate should drop to that which existed before the recession. Since the recession of 1970, however, the improvement has been halting and marked by relapses, he said.

"At latest reading, installment loan delinquencies, at 1.92 per cent, were higher than at any time during the last recession," he said.

It may be a little early to say whether the signs result from long-term pressures or are a temporary short circuit that can be fixed.

Perk Angry At Slight

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Mayor Ralph Perk has threatened to send his own investigators to Washington, D.C., to learn why Cleveland mounted policemen weren't permitted to march in President Nixon's inaugural parade.

The 12 men and horses arrived in Washington by van, but the men said they were prevented from unloading the horses by an unidentified Army colonel.

In a letter to inaugural committee officials, Perk demanded "appropriate discipline against the military officer responsible," and he said he might even send his own investigators to the nation's capital if the demand is ignored.

Perk said the colonel was "some crackpot...an incompetent who doesn't belong in a position of authority."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roman Catholic church leaders have deplored the Supreme Court decision guaranteeing American women the right to have medical abortions during the first six months of pregnancy.

John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia, the highest-ranking Catholic prelate in the United States, called the decision "an unspeakable tragedy" and said "it is hard to think of any decision in the 200 years of our history which has had more disastrous implications for our stability as a civilized society."

"In my opinion," Corrigan says, "the decision has licensed unscrupulous doctors to run abortion mills for the first three months of pregnancy." He adds, "...there are an unscrupulous few who will do abortions strictly for profit, without regard to the ramifications."

MRS. JAMES MICHAEL WOOD

Hoffman-Wood Wedding Vows Read In Lutheran Church

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Marianne Hoffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hoffman, 143 W. Union St., and Mr. James Michael Wood, son of Mrs. E. D. Wood, 390 Walnut Creek Pike and the late Mr. Emmett Wood on Dec. 16th.

Pastor Carl Zehner officiated the double ring ceremony 4:30 p.m. in Trinity Lutheran Church before the altar decorated with vases of white gladioli and crystal pompons with lemon leaf backing. Floor baskets of matching flowers enhanced the setting.

A half-hour of pre-nuptial selections was played by Mrs. Thomas Downing, organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, selected a formal gown of satin covered in white Chantilly lace. The bodice featured long fitted sleeves and a Sabrina neckline, and the long train was fastened at the waistline in back. The bride's fingertip veil of silk illusion was edged in lace matching her gown and worn as a mantilla. She carried a snow shower cascading bouquet of white carnations accented with pink sweetheart roses and camellia foliage.

Bridesmaid was Miss Jane Garrison, cousin of the bride, in a rose ruffled gown of polyester with rose nylon net covering the bodice. She carried a cascading bouquet using two shades of pink carnations and camellia foliage.

Flower girl was Miss Jody Hatfield, a niece of the groom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hatfield. She was dressed in a pink ruffled polyester formal length gown.

Mr. Gene Smith was best man and Mr. Larry Logan and Mr. Jerry Henderson served as ushers.

Mrs. Hoffman was attired for her daughter's wedding in a pale pink wool polyester dress with pink accessories. Mrs. Wood wore a blue linen shantung dress with matching accessories. Corsages for both mothers were of white carnations.

A reception in the Parish House of the church immediately followed the ceremony. An arrangement of dusty pink carnations with sprengeri garlands topped the four tiered wedding cake, centered on a white linen covered table. Lighted tapers flanked the cake and punch bowl.

Hostesses were Mrs. Vickie Bilchak, Mrs. Wayne Hatfield, Mrs. John Hoffhines, Miss Marsha Hoffman, Mrs. Larry Logan, Mrs. Dwight Overly and Mrs. Robert Lloyd.

For a wedding trip to a ski resort in northern Ohio, the bride wore an ivory ski sweater and navy blue flared wool slacks. The couple now resides in Bexley, Ohio.

The new Mrs. Wood is a senior at Capital University from where she will graduate in June with a degree in Art Education.

Mr. Wood, a graduate of Eastern Kentucky University, where he became a member of Phi Delta Theta Fraternity, is employed by the Ohio State University, Department of Public Safety.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Columbus, Cincinnati and Middletown, Ohio; New York, Mississippi and Florida.

Girl Scouts Attend Camp-In At Science, Industry Center

EXPERIMENTING—Judy Morrison, Sonya Jones and Tonya Lowe of Brownie Troop 942 in Circleville, watch the effect of static electricity on Christmas tree "rain." This was part of a science program during the Girl Scout COSI Camp-In weekend at the Center of Science and Industry in Columbus.

Twelve hundred Girl Scouts from Central and Southern Ohio gathered at Columbus' Center of Science and Industry the weekends of January 12-14 and 19-21 for the Center's second annual Camp-In.

Girls from throughout the 16 counties comprising the Seal of Ohio Girl Scout Council came for a weekend of fun and learning in a unique program first offered last year and planned by members of the COSI staff and volunteers and staff members of the Girl Scout office.

Senior Scouts began the weekend on Friday evening with special workshop seminars entitled, "The Social Side Of Science '73'". Throughout the remainder of the weekend these high school age girls assisted leaders and staff in providing the program for the younger girls.

Cadettes, or Juniors, also arrived Friday night and participated in a variety of programs including films, demonstrations throughout the building, with the opportunity to view COSI exhibits, and work on activity packages.

On Saturday morning a special program for Brownies gave them an opportunity to work on experiments in various areas, including astronomy, earth science, and historical crafts. Junior Scouts arrived Saturday afternoon and stayed until Sunday noon. They explored the Center, worked on project kits, attended movies, and like the Cadettes and Seniors, camped on the floors of the Center in sleeping bags and ate their meals buffet style. The same schedule was followed each weekend.

The Camp-In weekends, rich in both educational value and plain old-fashioned fun, are well on the way to becoming an established tradition and one that the girls look eagerly forward to each year as one of the highlights of the local Scouting program.

Pythian Sisters

Name Committees

Committees were named during the Thursday evening meeting of Majors Temple Pythian Sisters at the K of P hall. Mrs. Julia M. Burton, most excellent chief presided over the session attended by 34 members.

Mrs. Lucille Bosworth, secretary, read the altruistic report of Majors Temple for 1972 as submitted to the Grand Temple by Mrs. Carolyn Young, chairman.

The month of May was selected for the annual Inspection. Mary Bigerton, District Deputy Grand Chief, will notify members of the date.

Mrs. Burton named the following standing committees: auditing, Mrs. Geneva Woodward, Mrs. Mary E. Radcliffe and Mrs. Agnes Nau; cards and flowers, Mrs. Helen Wilkin; visiting, Mrs. Pauline Smallwood, Mrs. Opal Vance and Miss Clara Lathouse.

Mrs. Burton's motto for the year is, service, her color, purple and flower, violet.

Dues for the year were paid to the Pickaway County Historical Society. A social hour followed the business meeting. Serving on the refreshment committee were, Mrs. Leona Crites and Mrs. Ruby Wise.

It was noted that dues are now payable and should be mailed to Mrs. Jane Winfough, Route 5.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 1st at the lodge hall.

Young Adult Class

News Of Interest To Women

6 The Circleville Herald, Wednesday January 24, 1973

MRS. JAMES MICHAEL WOOD

Hoffman-Wood Wedding Vows Read In Lutheran Church

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Marianne Hoffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hoffman, 143 W. Union St., and Mr. James Michael Wood, son of Mrs. E. D. Wood, 390 Walnut Creek Pike and the late Mr. Emmett Wood on Dec. 16th.

Pastor Carl Zehner officiated the double ring ceremony 4:30 p.m. in Trinity Lutheran Church before the altar decorated with vases of white gladioli and crystal pompons with lemon leaf backing. Floor baskets of matching flowers enhanced the setting.

A half-hour of pre-nuptial selections was played by Mrs. Thomas Downing, organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, selected a formal gown of satin covered in white Chantilly lace. The bodice featured long fitted sleeves and a Sabrina neckline, and the long train was fastened at the waistline in back. The bride's fingertip veil of silk illusion was edged in lace matching her gown and worn as a mantilla. She carried a snow shower cascading bouquet of white carnations accented with pink sweetheart roses and camellia foliage.

Bridesmaid was Miss Jane Garrison, cousin of the bride, in a rose ruffled gown of polyester with rose nylon net covering the bodice. She carried a cascading bouquet using two shades of pink carnations and camellia foliage.

Flower girl was Miss Jody Hatfield, a niece of the groom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hatfield. She was dressed in a pink ruffled polyester formal length gown.

Mr. Gene Smith was best man and Mr. Larry Logan and Mr. Jerry Henderson served as ushers.

Mrs. Hoffman was attired for her daughter's wedding in a pale pink wool polyester dress with pink accessories. Mrs. Wood wore a blue linen shantung dress with matching accessories. Corsages for both mothers were of white carnations.

A reception in the Parish House of the church immediately followed the ceremony. An arrangement of dusty pink carnations with sprenger garlands topped the four tiered wedding cake, centered on a white linen covered table. Lighted tapers flanked the cake and punch bowl.

Hostesses were Mrs. Vickie Bilchak, Mrs. Wayne Hatfield, Mrs. John Hoffines, Miss Marsha Hoffman, Mrs. Larry Logan, Mrs. Dwight Overly and Mrs. Robert Lloyd.

For a wedding trip to a ski resort in northern Ohio, the bride wore an ivory ski sweater and navy blue flared wool slacks. The couple now resides in Bexley, Ohio.

The new Mrs. Wood is a senior at Capital University from where she will graduate in June with a degree in Art Education.

Mr. Wood, a graduate of Eastern Kentucky University, where he became a member of Phi Delta Theta Fraternity, is employed by the Ohio State University, Department of Public Safety.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Columbus, Cincinnati and Middletown, Ohio; New York, Mississippi and Florida.

Girl Scouts Attend Camp-In At Science, Industry Center

EXPERIMENTING—Judy Morrison, Sonya Jones and Tonya Lowe of Brownie Troop 942 in Circleville, watch the effect of static electricity on Christmas tree "rain." This was part of a science program during the Girl Scout COSI Camp-In weekend at the Center of Science and Industry in Columbus.

Twelve hundred Girl Scouts from Central and Southern Ohio gathered at Columbus' Center of Science and Industry the weekends of January 12-14 and 19-21 for the Center's second annual Camp-In.

Girls from throughout the 16 counties comprising the Seal of Ohio Girl Scout Council came for a weekend of fun and learning in a unique program first offered last year and planned by members of the COSI staff and volunteers and staff members of the Girl Scout office.

Senior Scouts began the weekend on Friday evening with special workshop seminars entitled, "The Social Side Of Science '73'". Throughout the remainder of the weekend these high school age girls assisted leaders and staff in providing the program for the younger girls.

Cadettes, or Juniors, also arrived Friday night and participated in a variety of programs including films, demonstrations throughout the building, with the opportunity to view COSI exhibits, and work on activity packages.

On Saturday morning a special program for Brownies gave them an opportunity to work on experiments in various areas, including astronomy, earth science, and historical crafts.

Junior Scouts arrived Saturday afternoon and stayed until Sunday noon. They explored the Center, worked on project kits, attended movies, and like the Cadettes and Seniors, camped on the floors of the Center in sleeping bags and ate their meals buffet style. The same schedule was followed each weekend.

The Camp-In weekends, rich in both educational value and plain old-fashioned fun, are well on the way to becoming an established tradition and one that the girls look eagerly forward to each year as one of the highlights of the local Scouting program.

Accountant Promoted At GE Plant

F. K. HAWKINS

F. K. (Buddy) Hawkins, Chillicothe, has been promoted to Plant Accountant at General Electric's Austintown Coil Plant according to an announcement by E. G. Grigg, plant manager, Circleville Lamp Plant.

Hawkins, a graduate of Ohio University, joined General Electric's Financial Management Program at Nela Park, Cleveland, Ohio in 1969. He came to Circleville in 1971 as a plant accounting Specialist and has remained at that position until the present.

Hawkins, his wife Jeanne and daughter Shannon plan to reside in the Austintown area.

Coal Production Decline Noted

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The bottom is dropping out of Logan County's coal mines, once the biggest producers in a state that used to be the nation's top coal supplier, and Logan miners are joining the ranks of the unemployed.

Production in the rest of the state rose slightly from 1971 to 1972, but the Logan coal fields produced only 8.3 million tons last year, the lowest since 1915, according to the Logan Coal Operators' Association.

A half-dozen mines were shut down during 1972 and some 900 miners were laid off just in the last two months of the year, the association says.

Highlights Of Johnson Presidency Listed

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some of the highlights of the presidency of Lyndon B. Johnson, who died Monday at 64:

1963
Nov. 22: Lyndon Baines Johnson becomes the 36th President of the United States upon the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas, Tex. A little more than two hours after Kennedy was shot, Johnson takes the oath of office, administered by federal Judge Sarah Hughes in the cabin of the presidential jet plane, Air Force One, at Love Field, Dallas.

1964
May 22: In an address to University of Michigan graduates at Ann Arbor, Mich., the President proposes for the first time the building of a "Great Society" in which cities would be revitalized, natural resources protected and educational opportunities assured all children.

July 2: Johnson signs the Civil Rights Act, the most sweeping civil rights legislation since Reconstruction. After months of parliamentary maneuvering and often acrimonious debate, a bipartisan majority in both houses of Congress passed a more far-reaching civil rights bill than President Kennedy had recommended in June 1963.

Aug. 5: The President asks Congress to pass a joint resolution assuring him of full support "for all necessary action" he might have to take to protect U. S. armed forces in Southeast Asia. The request followed two attacks within three days on U.S. destroyers by North Vietnamese PT boats in the Gulf of Tonkin.

Nov. 3: Johnson wins election to his own 4-year term, scoring one of the most overwhelming political victories in the history of the presidency. He gets 61 per cent of the vote and carries 44 states and the District of Columbia against six states for Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, the G.O.P. nominee.

April 7: In a speech at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Md., the President offers to take part in "unconditional discussions" about Viet-

Johnson Remained Active After Leaving White House

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — When Lyndon B. Johnson retired as President of the United States he did not retire to the rocking chair.

And he did not become a political superboss in his home state, as some of his critics predicted in 1968.

Johnson's chief interests and activities during his retirement years centered around his book "The Vantage Point," his Lyndon B. Johnson Library at the University of Texas and a fast growing cluster of national and state park areas around his beloved LBJ Ranch, 65 miles west of Austin.

Even his second major heart attack last April failed to slow many of Johnson's activities.

"I believe I am going to be as good as new by the new year," he said Nov. 16 when he and his wife, Lady Bird, celebrated their 38th wedding anniversary.

Johnson canceled formal speeches and appearances, at the request of his doctors, but he never stopped attending hometown affairs.

On Jan. 17, the Johnsons had a prominent spot on the platform when Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe was inaugurated in Austin. Johnson stood and waved cheerily to the crowd. Later, he joined the Briscoes for lunch, their first meal in the state executive mansion.

On Jan. 20, the former president and Lady Bird planted the first of 100 redbud trees to line Ranch Road I, which runs along the Pedernales River by the LBJ Ranch.

Although Johnson never held a scheduled news conference after leaving Washington and rarely made formal speeches, he never shunned people. Tourists were frequently surprised by the tall, friendly rancher who would walk up, grab their hands and give them an exhaustive explanation of his homeland.

In a semiserious mood, Johnson said his heart condition, and pressure from his doctors, made him follow the advice given him once by an old woman.

"This old woman said, 'When I walks, I walks slowly. When I sits, I sits loosely. And when I feel a worry coming on, I just go to sleep,' he said. 'That's what I'm doing now — just following her advice.'"

Many Heart Victims Die Needlessly

Every year people die needlessly because a trained person was not there who could give them the air or circulation they needed until their body could resume its normal work.

By participation in a resuscitation program — that is, a series of classes in mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external heart compression — Pickaway County Heart Branch is expressing its desire to reduce the number of needless deaths.

Classes in heart and lung resuscitation are being offered for the first time by the Pickaway County Heart Branch in cooperation with the Pickaway County Family YMCA. These classes will include mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, early warning signs of heart attack, and external heart compression. Two sessions of four classes are being offered on the following dates:

First Session — Jan. 25, Feb. 1, 8, & 15.

Second Session — Feb. 22, March 1, 8, and 15.

The classes will be held on Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 8:30. Charles Hedges, M.D. is the director of this program.

If you would like to enroll a representative in either of these two sessions, please contact the Pickaway County YMCA for reservations.

Highlights Of Johnson Presidency Listed

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some of the highlights of the presidency of Lyndon B. Johnson, who died Monday at 64:

1963
Nov. 22: Lyndon Baines Johnson becomes the 36th President of the United States upon the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas, Tex. A little more than two hours after Kennedy was shot, Johnson takes the oath of office, administered by federal Judge Sarah Hughes in the cabin of the presidential jet plane, Air Force One, at Love Field, Dallas.

1964
May 22: In an address to University of Michigan graduates at Ann Arbor, Mich., the President proposes for the first time the building of a "Great Society" in which cities would be revitalized, natural resources protected and educational opportunities assured all children.

July 2: Johnson signs the Civil Rights Act, the most sweeping civil rights legislation since Reconstruction. After months of parliamentary maneuvering and often acrimonious debate, a bipartisan majority in both houses of Congress passed a more far-reaching civil rights bill than President Kennedy had recommended in June 1963.

Aug. 5: The President asks Congress to pass a joint resolution assuring him of full support "for all necessary action" he might have to take to protect U. S. armed forces in Southeast Asia. The request followed two attacks within three days on U.S. destroyers by North Vietnamese PT boats in the Gulf of Tonkin.

Johnson Remained Active After Leaving White House

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — When Lyndon B. Johnson retired as President of the United States he did not retire to the rocking chair.

And he did not become a political superboss in his home state, as some of his critics predicted in 1968.

Johnson's chief interests and activities during his retirement years centered around his book "The Vantage Point," his Lyndon B. Johnson Library at the University of Texas and a fast growing cluster of national and state park areas around his beloved LBJ Ranch, 65 miles west of Austin.

Even his second major heart attack last April failed to slow many of Johnson's activities.

"I believe I am going to be as good as new by the new year," he said Nov. 16 when he and his wife, Lady Bird, celebrated their 38th wedding anniversary.

Johnson canceled formal speeches and appearances, at the request of his doctors, but he never stopped attending hometown affairs.

On Jan. 17, the Johnsons had a prominent spot on the platform when Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe was Nov. 3: Johnson wins election to his own 4-year term, scoring one of the most overwhelming political victories in the history of the presidency. He gets 61 per cent of the vote and carries 44 states and the District of Columbia against six states for Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, the G.O.P. nominee.

April 7: In a speech at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Md., the President offers to take part in "unconditional discussions" about Vietnam with the governments concerned.

He also offers to let North Vietnam participate in a vast, billion-dollar economic development plan for Indochina.

April 28: Johnson orders U.S. troops into the Dominican Republic, to protect U.S. lives and property, in the largest U.S. intervention in the Western Hemisphere.

July 30: Johnson signs the Medicare bill at the Harry S. Truman Library in Independence, Mo. The new law is intended to help 19 million Americans pay their bills for health services.

Aug. 5: The President signs the Voting Rights Act of 1965, 104 years to the day Abraham Lincoln had signed a bill freeing slaves who had been pressed into Confederate service.

Feb. 5: Accompanied by his leading political and military advisers, The President goes to Honolulu to confer with South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky. The Declaration of Honolulu issued three days later supports the main goals of Ky's military regime.

June 29: Johnson expands the air war by ordering U.S. jet fighter bombers to attack fuel storage and handling facilities on the outskirts of Hanoi and Haiphong.

Oct. 26: After meeting in Manila with the heads of the governments involved in the Vietnam fighting, Johnson makes a surprise visit to GIs at Cam Ranh Bay in South Vietnam, 50 miles away from the combat zone.

June 23: Johnson meets for the first time with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin in Glassboro, N.J., near Philadelphia. Kosygin came to the United States to address a special session of the U.N. General Assembly.

July 27: The President appoints a Special Advisory Commission on Social Disorder, headed by Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner "to investigate the origins of the recent disorders in our cities."

Aug. 24: The United States and the Soviet Union agree on a draft treaty to prevent the further spread of nuclear weapons. The draft represents a milestone in the disarmament negotiations that began at Geneva in 1962.

Sept. 29: Johnson says in San Antonio, Tex., the United States is prepared to "stop all aerial and naval bombardment" of North Vietnam if this would lead "promptly to productive discussions." Hanoi rejects the proposal.

March 31: Johnson announces he is "taking the first step to de-escalate the conflict" by "substantially reducing the level of hostilities" and also that he will not be a candidate for a second term. Several days later, the Hanoi government declares its willingness to negotiate.

June 26: The President announces the nomination of Associate Justice Abe Fortas, a close friend and adviser, to succeed Earl Warren as Chief Justice of the United States.

Oct. 2: Johnson says he will comply with Fortas' request to withdraw the nomination after the administration fails to halt a Senate filibuster and bring the nomination to a vote.

Oct. 31: A months-long deadlock in the peace negotiations is broken by the President's announcement that all air, naval and artillery bombardment of North Vietnam will cease the following day. He adds that North Vietnam has agreed, in exchange for a bombing halt, to permit the South Vietnamese government to take part in the Paris talks.

Many Heart Victims Die Needlessly

Every year people die needlessly because a trained person was not there who could give them the air or circulation they needed until their body could resume its normal work.

By participation in a resuscitation program — that is, a series of classes in mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external heart compression — Pickaway County Heart Branch is expressing its desire to reduce the number of needless deaths.

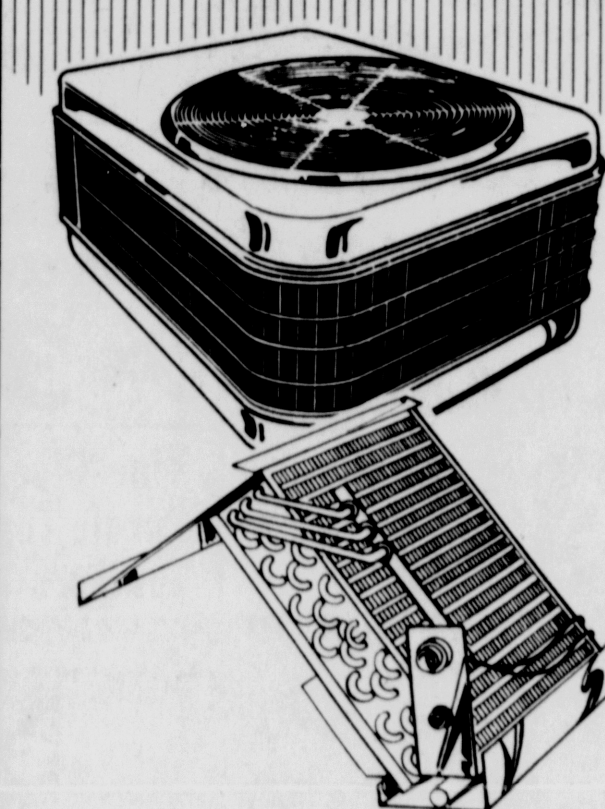

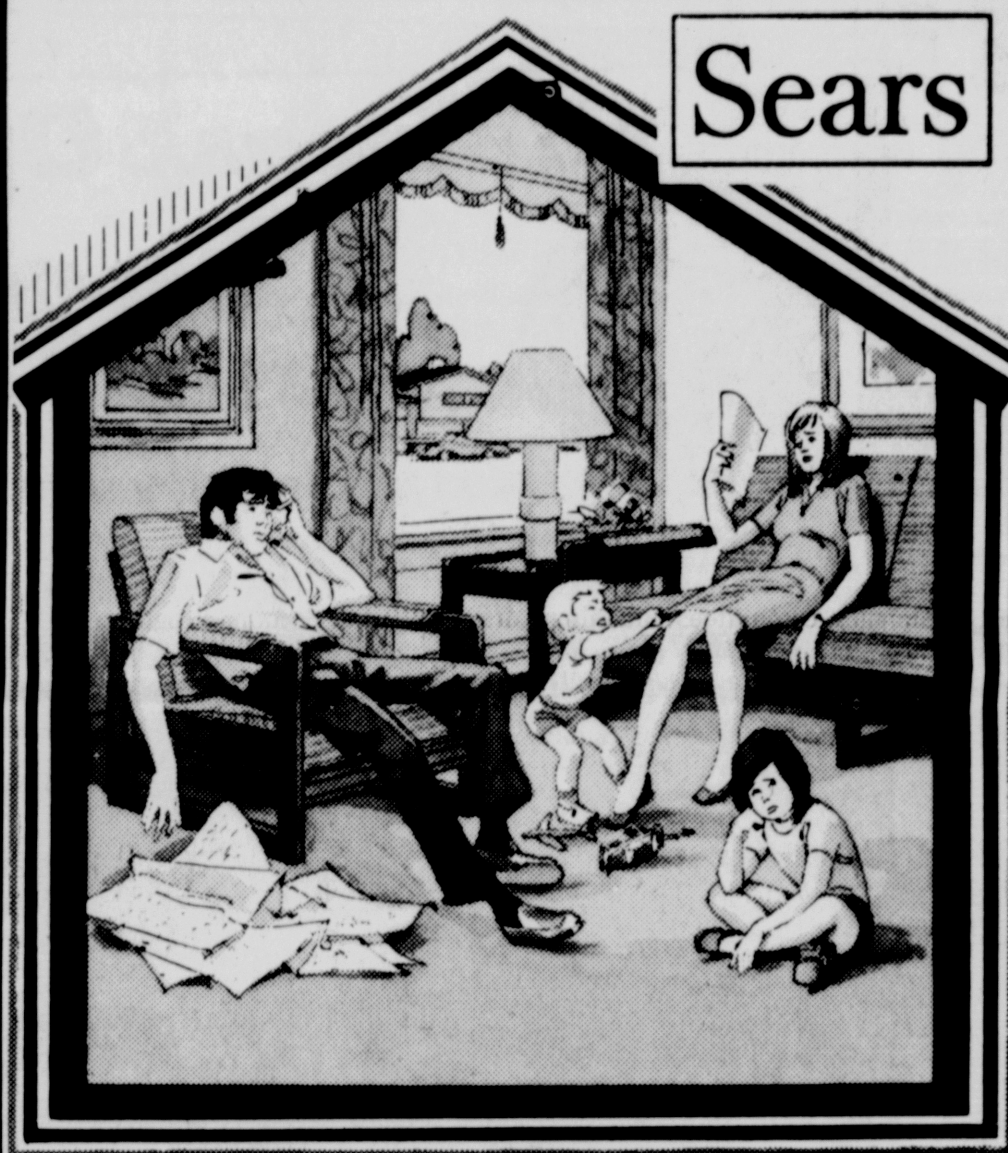

Classes in heart and lung resuscitation are being offered for the first time by the Pickaway County Heart Branch in cooperation with the Pickaway County Family YMCA. These classes will include mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, early warning signs of heart attack, and external heart compression. Two sessions of four classes are being offered on the following dates:

First Session — Jan. 25, Feb. 1, 8, & 15.

Second Session — Feb. 22, March 1, 8, and 15.

The classes will be held on Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 8:30. Charles Hedges, M.D. is the director of this program.

If you would like to enroll a representative in either of these two sessions, please contact the Pickaway County YMCA for reservations.

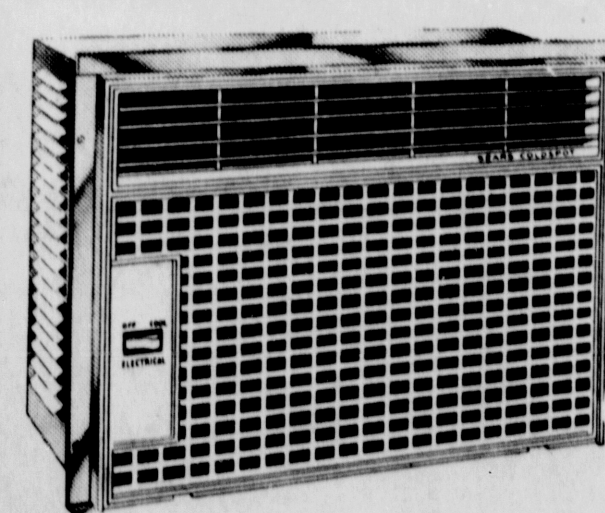

Guarantee
During the first year, we will repair your air conditioner, free of charge, if defective in material or workmanship. During the next four years, we will replace the compressor, free of charge, if defective in material or workmanship.

Accountant Promoted At GE Plant

F. K. HAWKINS

F. K. (Buddy) Hawkins, Chillicothe, has been promoted to Plant Accountant at General Electric's Austintown Coil Plant according to an announcement by E. G. Grigg, plant manager, Circleville Lamp Plant.

Hawkins, a graduate of Ohio University, joined General Electric's Financial Management Program at Nela Park, Cleveland, Ohio in 1969. He came to Circleville in 1971 as a plant accounting Specialist and has remained at that position until the present.

Hawkins, his wife Jeanne and daughter Shannon plan to reside in the Austintown area.

Coal Production Decline Noted

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The bottom is dropping out of Logan County's coal mines, once the biggest producers in a state that used to be the nation's top coal supplier, and Logan miners are joining the ranks of the unemployed.

Production in the rest of the state rose slightly from 1971 to 1972, but the Logan coal fields produced only 8.3 million tons last year, the lowest since 1915, according to the Logan Coal Operators' Association.

A half-dozen mines were shut down during 1972 and some 900 miners were laid off just in the last two months of the year, the association says.

Campus Notes

Mark Lutz, 575 Northridge Road, was named to the fall quarter dean's list at Kent State University.

A three-week study and travel tour of Russia began Jan. 3 for Greg Bigam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Bigam, Route 1, Williamsport.

In his travels, Greg visited Leningrad, Novgorod, Moscow, Kiev and Helsinki, Finland.

Greg is a 1970 graduate of Westfall High School and is now a junior at Capital University. He is majoring in political science and history and was on the dean's list for fall semester, earning a 3.75 grade average.

Glenn D. Williams, 2060 Sioux Drive, has been named to the dean's list for the 1972 fall trimester at Franklin University, Columbus. Williams, a graduate of Circleville High, is majoring in industrial management.

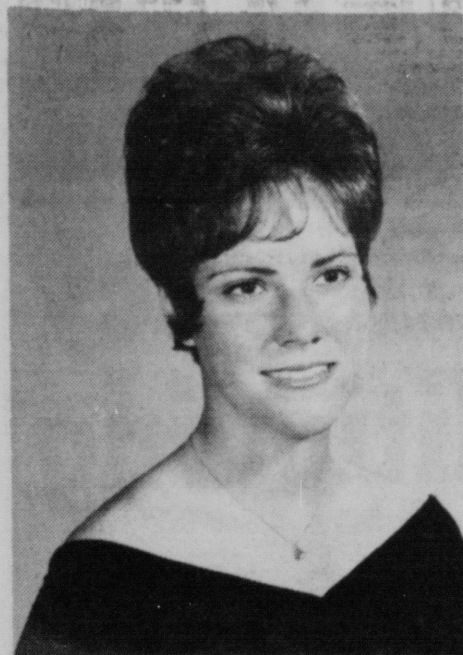

MARILYN KELLER

Marilyn Sue Keller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Keller, Route 2, Williamsport, graduated Dec. 8 from Career Academy in Columbus where she was enrolled in a course of dental assisting.

Marilyn was a 1972 graduate of Westfall High School.

Miss Karol Ann Carpenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Carpenter, Circleville, has been accepted for enrollment at Rio Grande College in the fall quarter, 1973. Karol is a graduate of Circleville High School and plans to major in education studies.

Vicki L. Stoer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stoer, Route 3, Mt. Sterling, has been nominated to the Dean's List of Capital University, Conservatory of Music, for academic excellence during the fall semester. Miss Stoer is a 1972 graduate of Westfall.

Students at Sewanee Academy are showing great initiative in inventing independent study programs for themselves for a between-semesters "master-students" program.

Among those students is Sid Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Wayne Griffith, 270 Sunset Drive. Sid is involved in the Latin tutorial program, taking instruction in beginning guitar and studying rock music during the interim period.

The Latin program is offered for students to catch up or advance in their class. The rock music program features the origins, initial years and decline of that type music. Sid added guitar lessons for his own personal development along the music level.

Classes in the program are led primarily by faculty members at Sewanee Academy.

Betty Jo Bolender, a graduate of Logan Elm High School, has been pledged to Alpha Chi Omega Sorority at Bowling Green State University.

Miss Bolender is a sophomore in the College of Education, majoring in Business Education.

Ohio State University has issued its honor roll for the autumn quarter, listing names of undergraduate students who achieved high academic averages for that period. Those honored are:

Neil Ray Fosnaugh, Route 1, Amanda; Guy Grover Cline Jr.,

Estimated Crop Losses Should Be Reported

Unfavorable weather during the normal harvest season for corn and soybeans caused thousands of policyholders to report probable losses to the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, according to Earl Wilson, service director for this area.

When the weather cleared in January for a few days, many farmers were able to complete harvesting by virtually staying in the fields around the clock. Wilson stated that policyholders who had reported a probable loss earlier should again notify the local FCIC office and report the production when harvest of an insured crop is completed.

If a loss occurred, the policyholder will then be contacted by an adjuster. If the production exceeds the policy guarantee, the 1972 records can be cleared and the Corporation can then concentrate on those cases which need further attention. Wilson also emphasized that February 1, 1973 is the final date for notification of loss to 1972 corn and soybean crops for policyholders who have not yet given notice to the Corporation.

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation is an agency of the United States Department of Agriculture. Protection is provided against all natural causes of loss on farm crops. Fairfield, Fayette, Greene, Madison, Montgomery and Pickaway Counties are serviced by the county office located at 27½ South Detroit Street, Xenia, Ohio 45304. Telephone: 513-372-5001.

Westerville Man

Hurt In Air Crash

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio man, Donald McCusker, 57, of Westerville, was injured in the airplane crash at Athens, Greece, Monday that killed the son of shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis.

McCusker's wife said her husband was in Athens seeking employment with Alexandros Onassis, 24, as a private pilot. He was listed in satisfactory condition at an Athens Hospital.

Onassis, the only son of Aristotle Onassis and stepson of the former Jacqueline Kennedy, reportedly was piloting the plane when it crashed during an approach to the airport.

Major Ills
Marked LBJ's
Later Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon Johnson's doctors pulled a couple of surprises during the Texan's rather eventful and varied medical history. In January 1965, Johnson developed a pesky cold with an accompanying cough that became known as "the cough heard 'round the world" because of the wide publicity given it. Thanks to it, an old-fashioned cough syrup—known as "brown mixture"—popped into the headlines. The syrup, also known as "licorice extract," first came on the market in 1836 and reportedly was extremely popular in Civil War days. In October of that same year, Johnson's doctors pulled another surprise: It was announced that Johnson was going to have an operation for the removal of a stone from his gallbladder. But the next morning, when Press Secretary Bill Moyers announced the operation had been "completely successful," he disclosed that the surgeons had also removed a kidney stone. Johnson's doctors had said nothing about the kidney stone prior to the operation. The former president's other illnesses and operations included: His first heart attack in 1955, a big one; a kidney infection in 1963; wart-like growths on his hand in 1965; a hernia operation in 1966, coupled with the removal of a benign growth from a vocal cord; a 1968 bout with diverticulitis, a painful intestinal ailment; a cardiac-related episode of chest pains in 1970, though short of an actual heart attack; a bout with viral pneumonia in 1971; his second major heart attack in April, 1972; and another episode of chest pains last July.

Commissioners, Judge In Clash

MENTOR, Ohio (AP)—Lake County commissioners are apparently headed for a showdown with a county juvenile court judge who has refused to trim his court budget. Judge Ross D. Avellone's $557,291 budget for 1973 is about 10 per cent of the county's total budget of $5.5 million, and Commissioner John Platz Jr. said the amount "is the biggest inflated budget in the county." Trimming the amount will be tricky, however, since Avellone has filed a journal entry (a court order) for $386,380 of the sum. Two years ago a Trumbull County judge sentenced commissioners to three days in jail for failing to follow such a court order.

NOTICE OF THE ANNUAL MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS OF THE SAVINGS BANK CIRCLEVILLE, OHIO

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Savings Bank Circleville, Ohio will be held on the first Wednesday of February to-wit: February 7th, 1973, between the hours of two and three p.m. at the banking house, 115-120 North Court Street, Pickaway County, Circleville, Ohio: for the purpose of Annual Election of Directors and for such other business as may be brought before the said meeting of stockholders. This notice is in conformance to Article I of the Constitution. For Notice of Annual Meeting of Stockholders. Harry J. Clifton Secretary January 24th, 31st

NOTICE OF PUBLIC SALE

Vera Marguerite Stevison, Guardian of the person and estate of Arvilla Madge White, an incompetent person, Plaintiff, vs. Arvilla Madge White, et al., Defendants

NO. 24953

In pursuance of the order of the Common Pleas Court of Pickaway County, Ohio, Probate Division, I will offer for sale at public auction on the 3rd day of February, 1973, at 1:30 P.M. on the premises located at 350 East Mound Street, Circleville, Ohio, the following described real estate: Situated in the State of Ohio, in the County of Pickaway, and in the City of Circleville, bounded and described as follows: Known as Lot No. 489 on the new and revised plat of the City of Circleville, Ohio, and so numbered according to the revised numbering of said lots of the City of Circleville, Ohio. The street address of the said premises is 350 East Mound Street, Circleville, Ohio. Said premises are appraised at $12,000.00 and must be sold for not less than two-thirds (2-3) of the appraised value. The terms of the sale are, to-wit: ten per cent of the purchase price is to be paid on the day of the sale, and the balance of the purchase price is to be paid upon the confirmation of the sale by the court and the delivery of the guardian's deed by the guardian. Vera Marguerite Stevison, Guardian of the person and estate of Arvilla Madge White Jan. 3, 10, 17, 24, 31, 1973

EDITORIAL NOTE: The 36th President of the United States fit no stereotypes, and perhaps that was one reason why he lost touch with the people, or they with him. This article, the first of five, examines the paradoxes of Johnson the man.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Almost from the day he was born, it seemed, Lyndon Baines Johnson had the makings of a president—right alongside those elements that would contribute to the breaking of a president. The story of his life could be told in such paradox. Perhaps his wife, Lady Bird, put it best, years later. Recalling her first encounter with the impetuous young Texan, she said: "I knew I had met something remarkable, but I didn't know quite what."

Millions understand now what she meant. Remarkable? Indeed. No one who chanced into that swirling, magnetic orbit could forget the experience. Lyndon Baines Johnson exuded a raw, frontier kind of strength; physically and psychologically, he overwhelmed. Apart from his mentor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, perhaps no other public man in this century—not even John F. Kennedy, whose elegant ghost haunted Johnson to the end—understood so well the sources of power in the world's most powerful capital—or knew, in LBJ's idiom, which button to mash, and how hard, to make things happen. That this talent, "the Johnson treatment," availed him little at the end did not diminish its impressiveness while it worked. Lady Bird was right on another count, too. From the moment he set foot in Washington in 1931 as a congressional secretary to the moment

The Johnson Years
Nation's 36th President Man Of Paradox

he flew back to Texas in 1969 after relinquishing the presidency, nobody really knew quite what Lyndon Johnson was all about. He was a study in contradictions. He was from the South, but no orthodox Southerner; from Texas, but not the stereotyped Texan; harsh and domineering with subordinates, yet capable of great kindness; a Democrat's Democrat, but no ideologue. He could be eloquent and moving and persuasive in one moment, and orate like a man dictating to a stonecutter in the next. He could be open, ingratiating, simple, transparent. And he could be fiercely secretive, offensive, jealous, and enormously complex. Johnson whipped through Congress more civil rights legislation than any president in history. Yet when he left the presidency, the nation's racial divisions were deeper than ever. No president spent as much money and forged as much legislation to improve the quality of education. But at the end, the students and intellectuals were shouting for his scalp. He pulled the country together when it was stumbling about in a daze after John Kennedy's murder. A year later the people were shouting "All the way with LBJ" and he won election in his own right by the biggest landslide in history to that time. But by 1968 the shouts in some anti-war quarters had turned to "Hey, Hey, LBJ, how many kids did you kill today?" and his land was plagued by the greatest divisiveness since the Civil War. There probably were more people out in the country like him than like his predecessor. Johnson was purely and aggressively American—a true frontier president in the tradition of Andy Jackson. But in the final judgment of his countrymen, it simply was not the time for a meat-and-potatoes man. Nor was it the time for Johnson's consensus politics—"There's got to be some common meeting ground for everyone." That may well have been the remedy the nation needed; it was not what the nation wanted. "In a sense," liberal Democrat Daniel P. Moynihan told Richard Nixon a year later, Lyndon Johnson "was the first American president to be toppled by a mob. No matter that it was a mob of college professors, millionaires, flower children, and Radcliffe girls. It was a mob that by early 1968 had effectively physically separated the presidency from the people." And it happened to a man who had told the nation in 1965, in perhaps his most eloquent and memorable address: "I want to be the president who helped to end hatred among his fellow men and who promoted love among the people of all races and all regions and all parties. I want to be the president who helped to end war among the brothers of this earth." It was not to be. The currents of the 1960s were running strong, if silent, well before Lyndon B. Johnson took the oath on that nightmarish Nov. 22, 1963. And later, reflectively, he said it simply was not given to him to lead the country out of itself. button installed in the Cabinet room and mispronounced the name of the drink; who expressed himself, privately, in the earthiest of barnyard analogy; who hollered down from the White House balcony to reporters to come see a real live poet, Carl Sandburg; who pointed to his daughter's loose-fitting dress and told his visitors it didn't mean what they thought; who pleaded with strike negotiators, late at night, to get it over with because "Lady Bird is waiting"; who engaged in staff conferences from the bathroom; who tore around the ranch at 90 miles an hour with a beer in his hand (and no vice president to succeed him); who hiked up his shirt to show the world his new surgical scar. For Johnson, politics was all there was. It was work, rest, recreation. Movies, theater, games, small talk—they all bored him. He might go for a boat ride on the Potomac or on Lake Lyndon B. Johnson—but the company, and the talk, were political. Wheeling a vote, or trying to hire a staff man, or coaxing someone into the administration, Johnson could turn the famous treatment on full blast. His hand pawed at his victim's arm as he stood chest to chest, his face literally on top of the other man's, his voice soft and cajoling, his eyes widening and scrunching up and occasionally welling with tears. He devoured single persons and small groups and usually got what he wanted. It worked for decades with senators, employees, prospective appointees, union men, friends, and even some foes. Major Ills

Later Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon Johnson's doctors pulled a couple of surprises during the Texan's rather eventful and varied medical history. In January 1965, Johnson developed a pesky cold with an accompanying cough that became known as "the cough heard 'round the world" because of the wide publicity given it. Thanks to it, an old-fashioned cough syrup—known as "brown mixture"—popped into the headlines. The syrup, also known as "licorice extract," first came on the market in 1836 and reportedly was extremely popular in Civil War days. In October of that same year, Johnson's doctors pulled another surprise: It was announced that Johnson was going to have an operation for the removal of a stone from his gallbladder. But the next morning, when Press Secretary Bill Moyers announced the operation had been "completely successful," he disclosed that the surgeons had also removed a kidney stone. Johnson's doctors had said nothing about the kidney stone prior to the operation. The former president's other illnesses and operations included: His first heart attack in 1955, a big one; a kidney infection in 1963; wart-like growths on his hand in 1965; a hernia operation in 1966, coupled with the removal of a benign growth from a vocal cord; a 1968 bout with diverticulitis, a painful intestinal ailment; a cardiac-related episode of chest pains in 1970, though short of an actual heart attack; a bout with viral pneumonia in 1971; his second major heart attack in April, 1972; and another episode of chest pains last July.

Commissioners,
Judge In Clash

MENTOR, Ohio (AP)—Lake County commissioners are apparently headed for a showdown with a county juvenile court judge who has refused to trim his court budget. Judge Ross D. Avellone's $557,291 budget for 1973 is about 10 per cent of the county's total budget of $5.5 million, and Commissioner John Platz Jr. said the amount "is the biggest inflated budget in the county." Trimming the amount will be tricky, however, since Avellone has filed a journal entry (a court order) for $386,380 of the sum. Two years ago a Trumbull County judge sentenced commissioners to three days in jail for failing to follow such a court order.

The Johnson Years
Nation's 36th President Man Of Paradox

Editor's note: The 36th President of the United States fit no stereotypes, and perhaps that was one reason why he lost touch with the people, or they with him. This article, the first of five, examines the paradoxes of Johnson the man.
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Almost from the day he was born, it seemed, Lyndon Baines Johnson had the makings of a president—right alongside those elements that would contribute to the breaking of a president.
The story of his life could be told in such paradox.
Perhaps his wife, Lady Bird, put it best, years later. Recalling her first encounter with the impetuous young Texan, she said: "I knew I had met something remarkable, but I didn't know quite what."
Millions understand now what she meant.
Remarkable? Indeed. No one who chanced into that swirling, magnetic orbit could forget the experience. Lyndon Baines Johnson exuded a raw, frontier kind of strength; physically and psychologically, he overwhelmed.
Apart from his mentor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, perhaps no other public man in this century—not even John F. Kennedy, whose elegant ghost haunted Johnson to the end—understood so well the sources of power in the world's most powerful capital—or knew, in LBJ's idiom, which button to mash, and how hard, to make things happen.
That this talent, "the Johnson treatment," availed him little at the end did not diminish its impressiveness while it worked.
Lady Bird was right on another count, too. From the moment he set foot in Washington in 1931 as a congressional secretary to the moment he flew back to Texas in 1969 after relinquishing the presidency, nobody really knew quite what Lyndon Johnson was all about. He was a study in contradictions.

He was from the South, but no orthodox Southerner; from Texas, but not the stereotyped Texan; harsh and domineering with subordinates, yet capable of great kindness; a Democrat's Democrat, but no ideologue.
He could be eloquent and moving and persuasive in one moment, and orate like a man dictating to a stonecutter in the next.
He could be open, ingratiating, simple, transparent. And he could be fiercely secretive, offensive, jealous, and enormously complex.
Johnson whipped through Congress more civil rights legislation than any president in history. Yet when he left the presidency, the nation's racial divisions were deeper than ever.
No president spent as much money and forged as much legislation to improve the quality of education. But at the end, the students and intellectuals were shouting for his scalp.
He pulled the country together when it was stumbling about in a daze after John Kennedy's murder. A year later the people were shouting "All the way with LBJ!" and he won election in his own right by the biggest landslide in history to that time.
But by 1968 the shouts in some anti-war quarters had turned to "Hey, Hey, LBJ, how many kids did you kill today?" and his land was plagued by the greatest divisiveness since the Civil War.
There probably were more people out in the country like him than like his predecessor. Johnson was purely and aggressively American—a true frontier president in the tradition of Andy Jackson. But in the final judgment of his countrymen, it simply was not the time for a meat-and-potatoes man.

Nor was it the time for Johnson's consensus politics—"There's got to be some common meeting ground for everyone." That may well have been the remedy the nation needed; it was not what the nation wanted.
"In a sense," liberal Democrat Daniel P. Moynihan told Richard Nixon a year later, Lyndon Johnson "was the first American president to be toppled by a mob. No matter that it was a mob of college professors, millionaires, flower children, and Radcliffe girls. It was a mob that by early 1968 had effectively physically separated the presidency from the people."
And it happened to a man who had told the nation in 1965, in perhaps his most eloquent and memorable address:
"I want to be the president who helped to end hatred among his fellow men and who promoted love among the people of all races and all regions and all parties."
"I want to be the president who helped to end war among the brothers of this earth."
It was not to be. The currents of the 1960s were running strong, if silent, well before Lyndon B. Johnson took the oath on that nightmarish Nov. 22, 1963. And later, reflectively, he said it simply was not given to him to lead the country out of itself.
He referred to his manner, his style, and said he was handicapped by "a general inability to stimulate, inspire, and unite all the people of the country, which I think is an essential function of the presidency.

"I have never really believed that I was the man to do that particular job . . . I never really felt that with all of my experience and my training and whatever expertise I had in 35 years of public service, that in the last analysis the people of every section would say, 'You tell us where to go and we'll go.' I just never did believe that...."
From the beginning, he was bedeviled by the word "style." He was a Texan in a city that had shed much of its Southernness and blended in with the East coast; a city that had made Jack Kennedy's Harvard accent its symbol, that reacted to the sudden new drawl as to scratching on a blackboard.
He deemed his critics snobs. Sam Houston Johnson wrote in his book "My Brother Lyndon": "I'm afraid that any politicians from the Deep South or Southwest (including my brother) are frequently damned by Northern liberals from the moment they open their mouths. They might be saying and thinking the same damned thing as some Harvard-educated congressman from the East, but they'll never get credit for it."
"It's all-out snobism against an accent, a mode of expression, a way of dressing, a way of eating—against a whole manner of living. I have even heard my brother's family ridiculed because they didn't have a fancy French chef in the White House kitchen, as if eating snails in garlic sauce will make you more civilized and human than eating plain meat and potatoes."
So Washington gossiped and giggled about a president who had a soft-drink button installed in the Cabinet room and mispronounced the name of the drink; who expressed himself, privately, in the earthiest of barnyard analogy; who hollered down from the White House balcony to reporters to come see a real live poet, Carl Sandburg; who pointed to his daughter's loose-fitting dress and told his visitors it didn't mean what they thought; who pleaded with strike negotiators, late at night, to get it over with because "Lady Bird is waiting"; who engaged in staff conferences from the bathroom; who tore around the ranch at 90 miles an hour with a beer in his hand (and no vice president to succeed him); who hiked up his shirt to show the world his new surgical scar.

For Johnson, politics was all there was. It was work, rest, recreation. Movies, theater, games, small talk—they all bored him. He might go for a boat ride on the Potomac or on Lake Lyndon B. Johnson—but the company, and the talk, were political.
Wheeling a vote, or trying to hire a staff man, or coaxing someone into the administration, Johnson could turn the famous treatment on full blast. His hand pawed at his victim's arm as he stood chest to chest, his face literally on top of the other man's, his voice soft and cajoling, his eyes widening and scrunching up and occasionally welling with tears. He devoured single persons and small groups and usually got what he wanted. It worked for decades with senators, employees, prospective appointees, union men, friends, and even some foes.
But in the end, it wasn't enough to persuade a nation.

BIG BEAR - FIRST & FINEST SUPERMARKET IN CIRCLEVILLE!

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Stubborn Mule Wants Four Carats

DEAR ABBY: I am 77 years old and Max is 80. We've been married for 60 years and have no complaints. Max has always been a flashy dresser. He wears a nice-sized diamond ring and a diamond stickpin. I have a four-carat diamond ring which I don't wear any more because I am afraid of being robbed or killed. Max said as long as I'm not wearing the diamond, he would like to make it into a ring for himself.

Abby, it's not that I don't want him to have the diamond, it's just that I am afraid of what might happen to him.

Since I have refused Max the ring, he is barely speaking to me. He also quit making love to me every Sunday afternoon which he has done for 60 years. I suppose I could live without it, but I got so accustomed to it, I feel deprived.

Should I give him the ring so he will be his old sweet and loving self again?

NEW YORK POST READER

DEAR READER: If he doesn't realize that you don't want him to have the ring because you are concerned about his welfare, shame on him.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old male and in college. I have yet to discover the formula for finding a girl friend. I ask girls out to sports events, movies, walks or anything, and have a refusal rate of about 99.7. The other 0.3 per cent agree so they won't hurt my feelings.

I know I am not very good-looking, and I have little money, but I see other guys who aren't good-looking with little money and they have girl friends, so it must be me.

My family life hasn't been too happy. My parents are divorced and there were five children and I lacked affection, which I am sure has something to do with my eagerness to make up for it now. I find extraordinary pleasure at any chance physical contact with another person, which is rare and only by accident.

Maybe it has something to do with my body chemistry, something in line with my inability to catch a fish. I've heard that a fish will not touch bait which has been prepared by a person with a certain characteristic body chemistry.

Any suggestions?

LONELY GUY

DEAR LONELY: Girls are not fish and you're no fisherman, so forget the body chemistry theory. Quit thinking about what you lack and start making small talk with any girl you dig who's handy. If she doesn't dig you, maybe she can dig you up a friend who does. You sound like a right young man. Now get going.

DEAR ABBY: This is an "open letter" to "Second Wife" who plaintively resents the children of "First Wife" helping themselves to all their deceased mother's possessions without considering that they were their father's possessions, too, and perhaps he had sentimental feelings about them.

Men are not the sentimental creatures "Second Wife" pictures her husband to be, and he probably couldn't care less about the things his wife collected during their marriage, especially once he has a new mate.

Besides, if "Second Wife" was a widow, she should have her own collection. If not, accumulating things for her new life with her new husband will be a pleasure.

Please, "Second Wife," don't pity your new husband because his children helped themselves to all their mother's treasures. He now has you, which should more than compensate for the loss.

I hope my happy marriage of 46 years last a lot longer, but just in case, I'm taping names on the backs of all my possessions indicating to whom they shall go, so my successor won't have to worry about it.

Further, if I were "Second Wife," I wouldn't care to have First Wife's possessions staring me in the face in my new home.

LUCKY Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply write to ABBY: Box No 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

WPAFB Will Be Repatriation Base For POWs

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Wright-Patterson Air Force Base is expected to be a major repatriation center for returning American prisoners of war once the Vietnam peace is signed.

The base hospital is to be the temporary home for as many as 100 returning POWs hailing from a five-state Mid-America area.

Terms of the cease fire announced by President Nixon call for return of all prisoners within 60 days but retiring Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said the airlift home would probably start as soon as the agreement is signed, sometime Saturday in Paris.

The hospital at the base is one of several in the U. S. to be used for similar "Operation Homecoming" programs.

Taft, Saxbe Agree

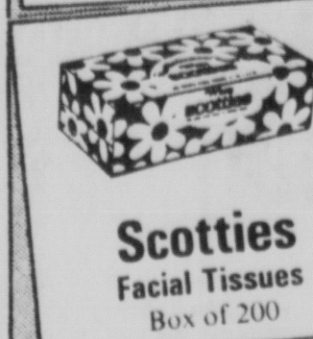

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio Republican Sens. William Saxbe and Robert Taft Jr. both voted with the majority as the Senate approved 74-11 Tuesday President Nixon's nomination of William Clements as deputy secretary of defense.

PVMH Board Holds Annual Meeting

The fourth annual meeting of the Paint Valley Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board was held at Wardell's Party Home, Jan. 15.

R. L. Sayre, executive director of the Paint Valley Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board announced that the officers for the previous year were re-elected for another term. This Board serves five counties: Fayette, Highland, Pickaway, Pike, and Ross with a population of 175,000 and is responsible for planning and implementing mental health and mental retardation services and programs.

In addition to the Board's financial and administrative responsibility to the Scioto-Paint Valley Guidance Center, it is responsible for the Drug Abuse Education Program, Continuing Education Program, which is contracted through Ohio University, Guidelines for Child Behavior, aired Monday through Friday on local radio stations. These programs are available in each of the five counties that the Board serves.

It was noted by Sayre that the only Continuing Education Program for the staffs of the Trainable Mentally retarded in the State of Ohio was in operation by this Board, in conjunction with the County Mental Retardation Boards.

Dr. Paul McAvoy was the speaker for the occasion. He pointed out some of the goals of the Department of Mental Health and stated that the designs of the Department were geared to the community based programs. The new district concept was presented, which will be implemented in the near future. The state will have ten uniform districts for all service providers and planning agencies.

The officers are: Robert Shanks, chairman-Highland County; Robert Frazier, M.D., vice chairman-Pickaway County; Miss Martha Cottrill, secretary-Ross County; Mrs. Lewis Dixon, treasurer-Pike County.

Also serving on the Board from: Pickaway County, William Myers, M.D. and Richard Fisher; Pike County, W. W. Wiltberger, M.D. and Mrs. Leslie Young; Highland County, Oliver Harris, and Judge Richard Davis; Ross County, Paul Hydel and Lowell Smith, M.D.; Fayette County, James E. Rose, M.D.; Mrs. Jean T. Craig and Mrs. Jane Mossbarger.

Ashville Church Plans Song Fest

A Song Fest of gospel and sacred music will begin 7 p.m. Sunday at the Zion United Methodist Church in Ashville.

The program of instrumental and vocal numbers will be presented by the area United Methodist Church Cluster Charge including the charges of Ashville Village-Hedges Chapel, Ashville Zion-Scioto Chapel, South Bloomfield and Jackson Chapel.

Five Westfall Seniors Highlighted By MC Staff

CATHY LEMASTER

RANDY KERN

BETH BEAVERS

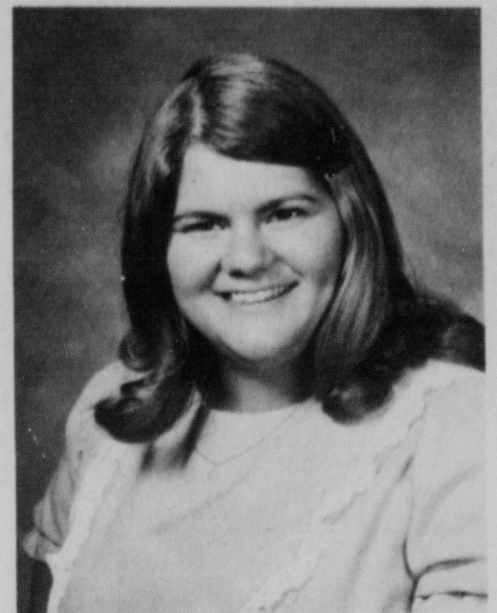

By PAM SCHODEY

This week the Mustang Country Staff is saluting six seniors as Seniors of the Week.

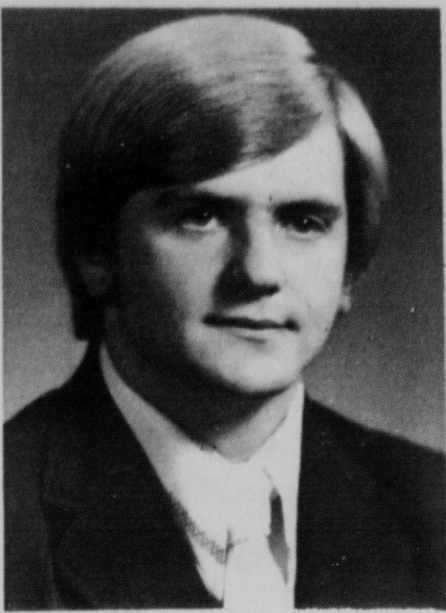

Randy Kern, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Kern, resides at Route 1, Orient, and is enrolled in the vocational course of study.

Randy participates in the Drama Club and Bowling Club at school. He participated in the Senior class play earlier this school year. Randy has previously been a member of both the Varsity W and the basketball team. In his spare time, he enjoys baseball, basketball, football, and water-skiing.

Following graduation, Randy plans to travel around the country and later

SANDY PEART

enter the service around August.

Beth Beavers, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Beavers, resides at 6550 Carson Road, Orient, Ohio. She is enrolled in college preparatory studies at school.

Beth is active in the Drama Club, Westfall High School Chorus, and the Ensemble. She has formerly been a member of the Latin Club, FBLA Club, annual staff, and band. She also participated in the Junior class play. In spare time, Beth enjoys acting, horseback riding, talking, singing, and collecting stuffed animals.

After graduation, she plans to attend Ohio State University to become a future social worker.

Sonny Liff, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Liff, resides at Route 3, Mt. Sterling, and is enrolled in the business course study.

At school, he is active in the pep band, marching band, concert band, Ski Club, Drama Club, Bowling Club, Chorus, and the Ensemble. Sonny is the president of the band and the news reporter for the Bowling Club. He also has participated in both the Junior and Senior class plays. Sonny's hobbies are horseback riding, bowling, swimming, camping, water-skiing, and music.

In the future, he hopes to be employed at General Electric.

Cathy Lemaster resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Lemaster, in Williamsport, Ohio, and is enrolled in the business course of study.

Cathy is a member of the Echo Staff. She lists her likes as being her job, the color blue, driving, all sports, Church, Julian, teasing you-know-who, and the "disgraceful class of '73." Her dislikes are people who cannot fight their own fights, getting stuck, and 3-B.

Cathy's future plans include keeping her job and getting married.

Juniors Think About Prom Preparations

Not many people make plans for Spring at this time of year, but the Junior Representatives at Westfall are hard at work planning the 1973 Junior-Senior Prom.

The juniors have a theme to pick, a menu to plan, a band to schedule, and decorations to be built, just to name a few of the many preparations that must be made for the prom, and to make matters worse, it all has to be kept a secret-if at all possible.

It is a lot of work, but the Junior Class is determined to have a grand 1973 Prom.

Beautiful Legs Contest Set

The FHA is planning a penny project for CARE. This project is a "Beautiful Leg Contest" featuring most of the male members of the WHS faculty.

Pictures of the candidates legs were taken by Miss Jean Jude and Miss Carol Clem. The pictures will be posted — no names attached — and students may vote for their favorite candidate by putting a penny in the candidates' penny jar — each cent means a vote for that candidate.

Of course, students may vote more than once, and other coins besides pennies may be used. At the end of the contest, the winner will be awarded his prize and all the money will be sent to the CARE Project.

Freshman Basketball Team Boasts 8-1 Season Record

Five freshman roundballers are in the spotlight this week.

Greg Varney, a forward, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Varney, lives at Route 3, Orient. Greg is one of the taller players and helps bring down the rebounds.

Kevin Reid is a forward. He resides at Route 3, Mt. Sterling with parents Kenneth Reid. At 6 feet 3 inches, Kevin is one of the key rebounders and puts in lay ups.

Jeff Karshner a center, lives at Route 3, Mt. Sterling with parents Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Karshner. Jeff is one of the strong offensive players.

Chris Riddle, guard, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Riddle of Route 1, Mt. Sterling. Chris has been showing some promising efforts at defense and with the scoring.

Mack Dick, forward, lives at Route 3, Mt. Sterling with Mr. and Mrs. Art Dick. Mack is an asset to the team and adds to the great Mustang spirit of the freshman team.

The freshmen have an 8-1 record. There will be a freshman tournament at Westfall Feb. 16-17 at 6:30 p.m. with Southeastern of Clark County, Madison South, Logan Elm and Westfall competing.

Club Notes

Officers of the Science Club held a meeting on December 20 to discuss plans for the Science Fair. This year, the projects entered in the various science fields will be judged on Saturday, February 17, from 8:00 until 2:30. It was also decided that the junior high students would be participating in their science fair also held at this time.

Science Club members in the near future will be enjoying a field trip to Bolton Field near Grove City.

Mr. Tracy Returns

After being away for two years, Mr. Jeff Tracy, returned to Westfall. He resides with his wife, Linda, at Route 2, Orient. Mr. Tracy taught at Westfall for three years previously.

He attended A and I University in Kingsville, Texas. He was on the Varsity Rodeo Team for two years while at A and I University.

At Westfall, Mr. Tracy teaches metals and is the cross-country coach. Mr. Tracy said, "This was my fourth year as cross-country coach here and I have discovered that it is impossible not to enjoy coaching this sport. Cross-country takes a special type of individual, and it is truly a pleasure to be able to work with people who are totally devoted."

When asked how Westfall compares this year to when he taught here before Mr. Tracy said, "I have been away from Westfall for two years. In that period of time the building has filled to capacity, the school day has changed, and we are now sharing a portion of the class day with our junior high. That's quite a change! However, the students are still the same good Westfall kids and that's all that counts to me."

As a member of the International Rodeo Association, Mr. Tracy enjoys calf roping and steer wrestling in his spare time.

BETH BEAVERS

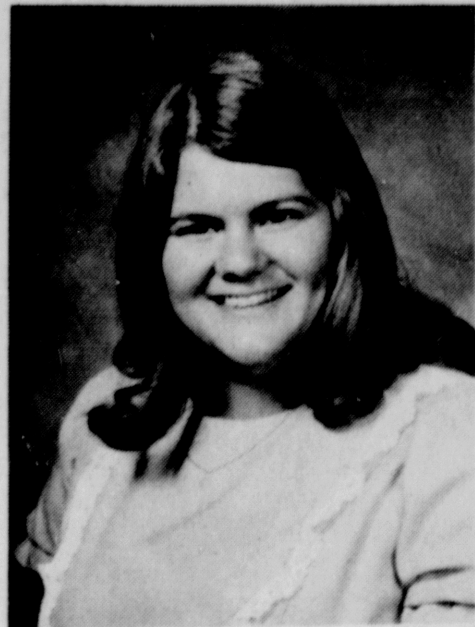

By PAM SCHODEY

This week the Mustang Country Staff is saluting six seniors as Seniors of the Week.

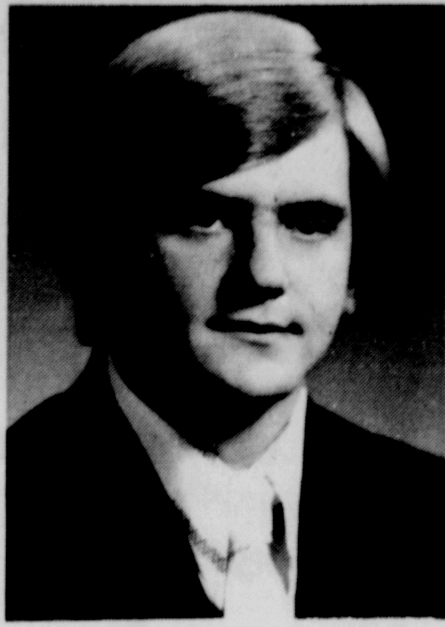

Randy Kern, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Kern, resides at Route 1, Orient, and is enrolled in the vocational course of study.

Randy participates in the Drama Club and Bowling Club at school. He participated in the Senior class play earlier this school year. Randy has previously been a member of both the Varsity W and the basketball team. In his spare time, he enjoys baseball, basketball, football, and water-skiing.

Following graduation, Randy plans to travel around the country and later

SANDY PEART

enter the service around August.

Beth Beavers, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Beavers, resides at 6550 Carson Road, Orient, Ohio. She is enrolled in college preparatory studies at school.

Beth is active in the Drama Club, Westfall High School Chorus, and the Ensemble. She has formerly been a member of the Latin Club, FBLA Club, annual staff, and band. She also participated in the Junior class play. In spare time, Beth enjoys acting, horseback riding, talking, singing, and collecting stuffed animals.

After graduation, she plans to attend Ohio State University to become a future social worker.

Sonny Liff, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Liff, resides at Route 3, Mt. Sterling, and is enrolled in the business course study.

At school, he is active in the pep band, marching band, concert band, Ski Club, Drama Club, Bowling Club, Chorus, and the Ensemble. Sonny is the president of the band and the news reporter for the Bowling Club. He also has participated in both the Junior and Senior class plays. Sonny's hobbies are horseback riding, bowling, swimming, camping, water-skiing, and music.

In the future, he hopes to be employed at General Electric.

Cathy Lemaster resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Lemaster, in Williamsport, Ohio, and is enrolled in the business course of study.

Cathy is a member of the Echo Staff. She lists her likes as being her job, the color blue, driving, all sports, Chuch, Julian, teasing you-know-who, and the "disgraceful class of '73." Her dislikes are people who cannot fight their own fights, getting stuck, and 3-B.

Cathy's future plans include keeping her job and getting married.

Bill Stanley, the son of Mr. and Mrs.

Edgar Stanley, resides at Route 1, Orient, and takes business subjects as his course of study.

STUDY.

Bill is active in the Drama Club and music department at school. He is presently the sergeant-of-arms for the Bowling League. Bill participated in the Junior and Senior class plays and was also a member of the FBLA. In his spare time, he likes swimming, acting, bike riding, horseback riding, and ice skating.

Bill plans to move to Florida sometime in the future to go to college if possible.

Sandy Peart resides at Route 2, Williamsport, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Peart. She is enrolled in business courses at school.

At school, Sandy is president of the Drama Club, president of the Bowling League, a member of both the Ski Club and the annual staff, a participant in GAA, and a school office-worker. She participated in the Junior and Senior class plays. Sandy's hobbies are bowling, horseback riding, reading, sewing, cooking, skiing, swimming, camping, hiking, track, talking, singing, making paper-mache giraffes, writing speeches for speech class, and brown-nosing teachers.

After graduation, Sandy is interested in going into acting, but she will probably try getting a job in an office.

Flu Epidemic Closes Georgetown School

GEORGETOWN, Ohio (AP)—Classes will remain closed at Alverda Reed Elementary School through Thursday because of a flu epidemic.

Most of the school's 500 students did not report Tuesday, officials said.

Newark Teachers Back On Jobs

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — Teachers returned to their jobs in the Licking Valley School District today and negotiations were to resume with the Board of Education in an effort to settle grievances that triggered a strike last Friday.

The agreement to resume working during negotiations was reached Tuesday at a meeting between board officials and representatives of the Licking Valley Education Association. The walkout had shut down the district's six schools, idling some 2,000 pupils.

The dispute reportedly involves longevity and overtime pay.

Fair Skies Favor Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Fair weather and mild temperatures favored most of the nation today.

Temperatures fell to zero or below only in parts of the central Rockies and the northern Great Lakes area. Light snow showers whitened some areas near the Great Lakes and the central Appalachians.

Light rain showers touched extreme southern Texas and parts of Florida.

Moderate rain soaked Washington, with Quillayute reporting more than 1½ inches. Heavy fog settled over California's central valleys and cloudiness extended along the West Coast from central California northward.

Attorney General's Aide Resigns Post

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Norman McIntyre, assistant state attorney general in charge of the Cleveland office has resigned to return to private law practice.

McIntyre, a Cleveland attorney, was appointed to his post by Atty. Gen.

William Brown on Jan. 11, 1971. He is to remain associated with Brown's office as a special counsel.

The Marines' motto is "Semper Fidelis" which means "Always Faithful."

WILBERFORCE, Ohio (AP) — A $7.8 million capital improvement program has been approved by Central State University's board of trustees. The program is the first phase of a long-range plan for improvements across the Central State campus.

A $6.25 million performing arts center and a $1.2 million administration building are included in the plans. An additional $230,000 in new construction would include a maintenance facility, university identification, and land planning offices.

Armco Steel Corp. Enjoys Big Boost In Earnings

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — The Armco Steel Corp. enjoyed a 49 per cent increase in earnings in 1972 thanks to a big fourth quarter performance, a company spokesman said. "Non-steel activities continued to be important factors in this profit improvement," said William Verity, chairman and chief executive officer. "Armco also benefited from cost reduction programs instituted in 1971 which are continuing.

"In addition, our steel business was substantially better last year, although we suffered from a price-cost imbalance which kept profit per ton below desirable levels," Verity said, predicting an upturn in 1973.

Preliminary, unaudited results for 1972 indicated Tuesday that Armco earned $75,604 million or $2.28 a share, on record sales of $1.910 billion. In 1971 the firm reported profits of $50,711 million or $1.44 per share, on sales of $1.696 billion.

A spokesman said that for the final quarter of 1972, Armco earnings were $21.539 million or 36 cents a share, on sales of $401.799 million.

Armco shipped 5.7 million tons of steel mill products in 1972 compared to 5.4 million tons in 1971.

Armco Steel Corp. Enjoys Big Boost In Earnings

WILBERFORCE, Ohio (AP) — A $7.8 million capital improvement program has been approved by Central State University's board of trustees. The program is the first phase of a long-range plan for improvements across the Central State campus.

A $6.25 million performing arts center and a $1.2 million administration building are included in the plans. An additional $230,000 in new construction would include a maintenance facility, university identification, and land planning offices.

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — The Armco Steel Corp. enjoyed a 49 percent increase in earnings in 1972 thanks to a big fourth quarter performance, a company spokesman said.

chairman and chief executive officer. "Armco also benefited from cost reduction programs instituted in 1971 which are continuing."

"In addition, our steel business was substantially better last year, although we suffered from a price-cost imbalance which kept profit per ton below desirable levels," Verity said, predicting an upturn in 1973.

Preliminary, unaudited results for 1972 indicated Tuesday that Armco earned $75.604 million or $2.28 a share, on record sales of $1.910 billion. In 1971 the firm reported profits of $50.711 million or $1.44 per share, on sales of $1.696 billion.

A spokesman said that for the final quarter of 1972, Armco earnings were $21.539 million or 36 cents a share, on sales of $401.799 million.

Armco shipped 5.7 million tons of steel mill products in 1972 compared to 5.4 million tons in 1971.

Sparky Predicts Pennant Capture

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds will win their second straight National League pennant and third in four seasons because of another grueling spring training.

That's Manager Sparky Anderson's wintertime prediction as the club drums up business for the 1973 season with a press caravan through four states.

"I try to win it (the pennant) in the spring," Anderson said Tuesday, "and we'll win it then, if we're healthy."

"We have the best training camp in baseball," boasted the prematurely gray Anderson, 38. "No one does the work we do. We go more for the physical part — running and exercises."

Such a ritual has paid dividends for the personable Anderson. He led the Reds to the league championship in his rookie season in 1970 and again in 1972, losing the World Series in seven games last fall to the Oakland Athletics.

"I'm all business in the spring," he described himself. "That's the way it has to be done."

"It's punishment, there's no question about it," he said of the demanding workouts at the club's spring training site in Tampa, Fla.

"But the guys who have been with me know the rewards it brings," he explained. "They don't let anybody loaf. Guys like Pete Rose, Johnny Bench and Bobby Tolan keep everybody on their toes."

Anderson then predicted another pennant, saying, "We don't have any fatheads. Our players are not overconfident."

The Reds pilot continued, "This is our best club. There's only one spot open on the bench for a newcomer and I can't see any young pitcher sticking."

Anderson said the Reds would start 1973 with a five-man pitching rotation of Gary Nolan, Don Gullett, Jack Bilingham, Ross Grimsley and Roger Nelson, acquired from Kansas City in an off-season trade for Hal McRae.

He believes Bench, the league's Most Valuable Player, will be ready for the season after the power-hitting catcher underwent lung surgery after the World Series.

Anderson said Darrel Chaney and Dave Concepcion will platoon at shortstop and Cesar Geronimo would be his right fielder, despite the acquisition of good-hitting Richie Scheinblum from Kansas City.

"I don't think Richie has had the pleasure of seeing Geronimo play," the Reds pilot explained. "Geronimo is our best all-around outfielder. He has the best throwing arm today in baseball."

County Schools In Key Contests

Friday night action for the county schools will find Teays Valley at Marysville is a key Metropolitan League clash, Logan Elm at Paint Valley in a Scioto Valley Conference tilt and Westfall will go to Berne Union in a non league fray. The Vikings will be the only squad back in action Saturday night when they meet Circleville in Roundtown in a county rivalry confrontation.

The Vikings are in the drivers seat with a record of 8-1 in Metro play. Dublin and Orlentangy are tied for second with 6-3 league marks. Teays Valley will meet both in the last two regulation games of the season.

"A win at Marysville will give us a share of the league crown but we are out to take it all," Viking Coach Bob Hoover stated. "Our kids have been coming on strong and we now have a solid club with a lot of confidence. Our boys are looking forward to the Saturday night game at Circleville and we must guard against a letdown Friday night. We will have no trouble getting up for Circleville as this is also a key prestige game for us," Hoover commented.

Marysville is not a contender in the Metro race but will be out to avenge an earlier season loss to the Vikings. Marysville is tough at home and have not suffered a loss on its own court.

They are led offensively by Low, a good driver, and Whiteside, a fine outside shooter. Deal provides Marysville with one of the best defensive performers in the area.

Coach Hoover will go with Craig Pontius and Jerry Sabine at the guards, Jim Logsdon at center with Terry Collins and Jay Brinker working up front. Jeff Anderson and Terry Lambert provide the Vikings with good bench strength.

Coach Dave Little's Braves will be out to hold onto their undefeated mark in SVC action when they take on the Paint Valley squad.

Logan Elm is 4-0 in league competition, 11-2 for the season and trail East Clinton who has a 5-0 mark in SVC play. Paint Valley has a 3-3 record in conference tilts.

It will be Tom Sykes and Tim Justice, a great pair of shooters, who will lead the potent offense of the Braves as they make their run for the title.

Coach Jeff Bigam and his Westfall Mustangs will still be seeking their first win of the season when they take on the Rockets. The Scarlet and Gray have come up with some good efforts this year but have found the winning trail elusive.

OWU Tops Otterbein

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio Wesleyan shocked Otterbein 73-70 in an Ohio Conference basketball game Tuesday night, while Muskingum improved its league mark to 6-1 at the expense of Denison, 80-53.

Wesleyan moved into the lead with about five minutes remaining in the game on Dan Penrod's 15-foot jumper and never was headed after that in handing Otterbein its first loss in six conference games.

Pacing the Bishops, now 2-4 in the OC, was Penrod with 22 points.

Muskingum's attack was led by 5-foot-8 junior guard Gene Ford with 25 points. The loss was Denison's fifth in six league contests.

Other Ohio Conference action saw Oberlin defeating Heidelberg 69-57 and Wooster downing Baldwin-Wallace 59-50.

Marquette Downs Northern Michigan

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Marquette Warriors have certainly had their ups and downs this season.

On Tuesday night, they had them both in one game.

"Their offense consisted of no more than just putting the ball up and letting their big guys slam it down," said Northern Michigan Coach Glenn Brown after dropping a 76-55 basketball decision to the 10th-ranked Warriors.

After the Warriors lost their first two games of the season last week, a soft-touch opponent was welcome relief.

"I think we played relatively close together for this kind of game, but that should be our last easy one for a while," said Marquette Coach Al McGuire. "Northern Michigan did the best they could—but we're just too strong."

The Warriors, virtually unbeatable at home where they've lost only once in the last 84 games, have plenty of road engagements the rest of the way. They will play only three of the next 11 games at home.

Northern Michigan's starting front line averages about an inch shorter than Marquette's. But while it's not a dramatic height advantage, the Warriors are more of a physical team.

"And they shoot better than we were led to believe," added Brown.

In other games Tuesday night, fourth-ranked Maryland drubbed Long Island University 100-73; No. 18 Kansas State stopped Kansas 77-68; Oral Roberts ripped Pan American 87-68; Texas A&M defeated Texas 69-64; Southern Methodist smothered Texas Christian 104-71; Baylor slapped Arkansas 76-70; Air Force slugged Southern Colorado State 74-58; Oklahoma City topped Tulsa 100-96; Lafayette beat West Virginia 61-60; Texas Tech whipped Rice 76-70 and Denver turned back Western State in overtime, 106-98.

Larry McNeil's 21 points and a 15-point, 13-rebound performance by George Frazier paced Marquette to its 13th victory in 15 starts. Northern Michigan, 7-6, cut an early 12-point Marquette lead to four points in the first half, but a pair of baskets by Maurice Lucas got the home team rolling again.

Maryland outscored LIU 21-4 in the first seven minutes of the second half enroute to its 13th victory in 14 starts this year. Jim O'Brien led the Terps with 20 points. Ten of them were scored during the first nine minutes after intermission as Maryland charged to a 73-45 lead.

Ernie Kusnyer and Steve Mitchell scored all 25 points to start the second half, leading Kansas State over Kansas. Trailing 37-34 at the half, the Wildcats wasted little time in taking charge of the game after intermission.

Eastern NBA All-Stars Rip West For 104-84 Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — The secret of success in the National Basketball Association All-Star game was speed, rebounding and substitutions.

"Our entire plan was to run 'em, run 'em, run 'em and get the boards," said Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn after his East team swamped the favored West Tuesday night 104-84.

That was half the story. The other half was a substitution pattern that saw Nate Archibald and Sidney Wicks combine for 21 points in the first quarter for the West, then sit on the bench until the fourth quarter, when it was too late.

"You try to figure out who you want in the last quarter," said Bill Sharman, the coach of the West. "You want your best men in there if it's close."

"In an All-Star game everybody has to play," echoed Archibald, the mini-guard for the Kansas City-Omaha Kings whose bench-warming prompted a chant of "We want Nate" while the East was breaking open the game in the third quarter.

The West went into the game as a slight favorite, primarily because of a towering front line featuring Wilt Chamberlain, Wicks, Seattle's Spencer Haywood, Golden State's Nate Thurmond and Detroit's Bob Lanier. Despite the absence of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who withdrew for personal reasons, they figured to overwhelm the East.

But Boston's Dave Cowens, who led the East with 15 points and both teams with 13 rebounds, spearheaded a hustling, banging board effort that won him the Most Valuable Player prize. And he had valuable rebound help from Celtics' teammate John Havlicek, Baltimore's Elvin Hayes and New York's Dave DeBusschere and Walt Frazier as the East accumulated a rebounding edge of 66-53.

"Everybody won the game for us," Heinsohn said. "We had all the fast break guys and that's the way we played the game."

Bo Schembechler Selected Big Ten Coach Of The Year

CHICAGO (AP) — Ohio State's Woody Hayes went to the Rose Bowl, but Michigan's Bo Schembechler reigned today as the Big Ten's Football Coach of the Year.

Schembechler, whose co-champion Wolverines missed the Rose Bowl assignment in a season-closing 14-11 upset by Ohio State, was named winner of the first Coach of The Year Award in a poll of writers and sportscasters covering the Big Ten.

The trophy was presented to Schembechler at a press reception Tuesday night by commissioner Wayne Duke following a daylong annual meeting of conference coaches.

After losing 15 starters from his 1971 undisputed championship club, Schembechler directed the Wolverines to 10 straight victories before stumbling in the finale at Ohio State for a final 10-1 record and No. 7 ranking in the closing AP national poll.

Duke lauded Schembechler's "tremendous success" in four Michigan seasons since his arrival from Miami (Ohio).

"His won-lost mark of 38-4 over the past four years rates as one of the all-time best over that time span," said Duke, stressing that Bo's Wolverines won outright or shared the title three times.

Since the close of the 1972 conference campaign which ended in a title deadlock between Michigan and Ohio State, each with 7-1, a game of musical chairs developed in the Big Ten coaching ranks.

Among the nine colleagues attending the show for Schembechler were four mentors who changed jobs over the season.

They included Alex Agase, switching from Northwestern to Purdue; Johnny Pont from Indiana to Northwestern; Lee Corso, former Louisville coach, replacing Pont at Indiana, and Denny Stolz being elevated to the head post at Michigan State after assisting retired Duffy Daugherty.

Chamber Chief Fights To Keep Soap Box Derby

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The Soap Box Derby, 38-year-old mecca of American boys who like to hurtle down-hill in homemade racers, finds itself on an up-hill course.

It may be slowly coasting to a stop. George W. Brittain, executive vice president of the Akron area Chamber of Commerce, is the man who has the task of finding a new angel to keep alive the dreams of more than 60,000 youngsters in 38 states and nine foreign countries.

"It's a challenge, but not one that's insurmountable," said Brittain.

He persuaded the Chevrolet Division of General Motors Corp. to sponsor the event one more time last year. It shelled out $500,000 for the spectacle. A 1973 sponsor must be found by Feb. 15.

Rooting on the sidelines are former Soap Box Derby champions like Terry Townsend of Anderson, Ind., who took the crown in 1957. The former winners, looking ahead to the possible death of the derby and looking back on its benefits, are sad, fearful, optimistic and nostalgic.

"It'd be quite a personal loss," said Townsend. "If you've lived with something like this . . . it's like cutting off an arm."

Kenneth Holmboe, the 1947 champion who now works as a researcher at Penn State, agreed. "I'd hate to see it end. I think we need the Derby, even if there isn't as much extravaganza and pomp as there is now."

Herbert Muench Jr. of Hood River, Ore., the 1936 champion, said, "It teaches young men sportsmanship and fellowship."

"I was talking to Robert Turner, the first Derby champion, and he nearly cried," said Townsend. "He's lived the Derby for 35 years."

Turner, then 11, won the only Derby held in Dayton. He came over from Muncie, Ind.

Brittain has seen the Derby finale in Akron grow from 52 to 251 entrants, he wants to keep the Derby alive, and he's optimistic.

"All of a sudden," he said, "the whole thing will collapse and fit together."

But, Brittain has problems. First, the half million dollar cost. "You can't reduce the size of the event. It would lose its effectiveness. You're dealing with youth. You can never lose sight of being first class."

Brittain doesn't want to rush into agreements with sponsors who want to contract only for one year. And, he said, he may choose as many as four sponsors splitting the costs equally.

"The only thing I'm trying to do," said Brittain, "is get the money. It's the problem of finding the right person at the right time."

More than 20 firms interested in sponsoring part or all of the Derby have approached Brittain, he said. The big problem is convincing them the boys get that much out of it.

"I got a tremendous amount of things out of the Derby, and I'm still getting benefits," said Townsend.

"I've learned a lot more about life than I would have. Building the car gives a youth a better relationship with his father. A youngster learns to be more versatile. It's more than sitting down, building a car and sitting on top of a hill in the racer."

Holmboe said: "It's something you put together with your own hands. There's a lot of hard work. When it comes time to race, it's all in your own hands. It's the first real big project a boy is exposed to, where he spends many hours before he gets to the actual end."

"There's an association of companionship between the father and the son in building the racer."

There are material advantages. Various firms give the finalists a variety of gifts, watches, cameras, racing shirts, tool kits and levis.

The Derby itself gives $30,000 in college scholarships.

In the days before the finale the kids and their parents are courted with films, dinners, parades, a Derby camp—a gala that never slows down. And, the kids meet celebrities who attend and participate in a special race.

If the Soap Box Derby makes it up the hill, there likely will be some changes. Holmboe and the study committee have recommended some.

"The rules say the racer has to be 100 per cent boy-built," he said. "Yet it's the type of project where the boy needs help. There's a lot of jobs that take a lot of hands."

"We have recommended that rule be knocked out and just make it home-built, encourage the father-racer relationship and at the same time require the contestant to have thorough knowledge of the car."

Holmboe thinks the extravaganza week before the Derby could be cut back and still leave enough to make youngsters' eyes spin.

"Shorten the Derby week, cut down on the costs and put the emphasis back on the Derby," he said, "but have a Derby. There isn't an institution like it in the country."

Coach Dave Little's Braves will be out to hold onto their undefeated mark in SVC action when they take on the Paint Valley squad.

Logan Elm is 4-0 in league competition, 11-2 for the season and trail East Clinton who has a 5-0 mark in SVC play. Paint Valley has a 3-3 record in conference tilts.

It will be Tom Sykes and Tim Justice, a great pair of shooters, who will lead the potent offense of the Braves as they make their run for the title.

Coach Jeff Bigam and his Westfall Mustangs will still be seeking their first win of the season when they take on the Rockets. The Scarlet and Gray have come up with some good efforts this year but have found the winning trail elusive.

OWU Tops Otterbein

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio Wesleyan shocked Otterbein 73-70 in an Ohio Conference basketball game Tuesday night, while Muskingum improved its league mark to 6-1 at the expense of Denison, 80-53.

Wesleyan moved into the lead with about five minutes remaining in the game on Dan Penrod's 15-foot jumper and never was headed after that in handing Otterbein its first loss in six conference games.

Pacing the Bishops, now 2-4 in the OC, was Penrod with 22 points.

Muskingum's attack was led by 5-foot-8 junior guard Gene Ford with 25 points. The loss was Denison's fifth in six league contests.

Other Ohio Conference action saw Oberlin defeating Heidelberg 69-57 and Wooster downing Baldwin-Wallace 59-50.

Elsewhere, Hiram beat Thiel, Pa. 77-66.

Marquette Downs Northern Michigan

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Marquette Warriors have certainly had their ups and downs this season.

On Tuesday night, they had them both in one game.

"Their offense consisted of no more than just putting the ball up and letting their big guys slam it down," said Northern Michigan Coach Glenn Brown after dropping a 76-55 basketball decision to the 10th-ranked Warriors.

After the Warriors lost their first two games of the season last week, a soft-touch opponent was welcome relief.

"I think we played relatively close together for this kind of game, but that should be our last easy one for a while," said Marquette Coach Al McGuire. "Northern Michigan did the best they could—but we're just too strong."

The Warriors, virtually unbeatable at home where they've lost only once in the last 84 games, have plenty of road engagements the rest of the way. They will play only three of the next 11 games at home.

Northern Michigan's starting front line averages about an inch shorter than Marquette's. But while it's not a dramatic height advantage, the Warriors are more of a physical team. "And they shoot better than we were led to believe," added Brown.

In other games Tuesday night, fourth-ranked Maryland drubbed Long Island University 100-73; No. 18 Kansas State stopped Kansas 77-68; Oral Roberts ripped Pan American 87-

Perry Moves Into

$100,000 Club

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Indians pitcher Gaylord Perry has moved into the $100,000 club.

Perry said Tuesday that he has inked a contract for 1974 that "is the best one I ever signed."

"I'm not going to say how much it's for, but naturally I'm pleased with it and, yes, it includes a raise," said the American League Cy Young award winner in 1972.

68; Texas A&M defeated Texas 69-64; Southern Methodist smothered Texas Christian 104-71; Baylor slapped Arkansas 76-70; Air Force slugged Southern Colorado State 74-58; Oklahoma City topped Tulsa 100-96; Lafayette beat West Virginia 61-60; Texas Tech whipped Rice 76-70 and Denver turned back Western State in overtime, 106-98.

Larry McNeil's 21 points and a 15-point, 13-rebound performance by George Frazier paced Marquette to its 13th victory in 15 starts. Northern Michigan, 7-6, cut an early 12-point Marquette lead to four points in the first half, but a pair of baskets by Maurice Lucas got the home team rolling again.

Maryland outscored LIU 21-4 in the first seven minutes of the second half enroute to its 13th victory in 14 starts this year. Jim O'Brien led the Terps with 20 points. Ten of them were scored during the first nine minutes after intermission as Maryland charged to a 73-45 lead.

Ernie Kusnyer and Steve Mitchell scored all 25 points to start the second half, leading Kansas State over Kansas. Trailing 37-34 at the half, the Wildcats wasted little time in taking charge of the game after intermission.

Eastern NBA All-Stars Rip West For 104-84 Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — The secret of success in the National Basketball Association All-Star game was speed, rebounding and substitutions.

"Our entire plan was to run 'em, run 'em, run 'em and get the boards," said Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn after his East team swamped the favored West Tuesday night 104-84.

That was half the story. The other half was a substitution pattern that saw Nate Archibald and Sidney Wicks combine for 21 points in the first quarter for the West, then sit on the bench until the fourth quarter, when it was too late.

"You try to figure out who you want in the last quarter," said Bill Sharman, the coach of the West. "You want your best men in there if it's close."

"In an All-Star game everybody has to play," echoed Archibald, the mini-guard for the Kansas City-Omaha Kings whose bench-warming prompted a chant of "We want Nate" while the East was breaking open the game in the third quarter.

The West went into the game as a slight favorite, primarily because of a towering front line featuring Wilt Chamberlain, Wicks, Seattle's Spencer Haywood, Golden State's Nate Thurmond and Detroit's Bob Lanier. Despite the absence of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who withdrew for personal reasons, they figured to overwhelm the East.

But Boston's Dave Cowens, who led the East with 15 points and both teams with 13 rebounds, spearheaded a hustling, banging board effort that won him the Most Valuable Player prize. And he had valuable rebound help from

Celtics' teammate John Havlicek, Baltimore's Elvin Hayes and New York's Dave DeBusschere and Walt Frazier as the East accumulated a rebounding edge of 66-53.

Bo Schembechler Selected Big Ten Coach Of The Year

CHICAGO (AP) — Ohio State's Woody Hayes went to the Rose Bowl, but Michigan's Bo Schembechler reigned today as the Big Ten's Football Coach of the Year.

Schembechler, whose co-champion Wolverines missed the Rose Bowl assignment in a season-closing 14-11 upset by Ohio State, was named winner of the first Coach of The Year Award in a poll of writers and sportscasters covering the Big Ten.

The trophy was presented to Schembechler at a press reception Tuesday night by commissioner Wayne Duke following a daylong annual meeting of conference coaches.

After losing 15 starters from his 1971 undisputed championship club, Schembechler directed the Wolverines to 10 straight victories before stumbling in the finale at Ohio State for a final 10-1 record and No. 7 ranking in the closing AP national poll.

Duke lauded Schembechler's "tremendous success" in four Michigan seasons since his arrival from Miami (Ohio).

"His won-lost mark of 38-4 over the past four years rates as one of the all-time best over that time span," said Duke, stressing that Bo's Wolverines won outright or shared the title three times.

Since the close of the 1972 conference campaign which ended in a title deadlock between Michigan and Ohio State, each with 7-1, a game of musical chairs developed in the Big Ten coaching ranks.

Among the nine colleagues attending the show for Schembechler were four mentors who changed jobs over the season.

Chamber Chief Fights To Keep Soap Box Derby

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The Soap Box Derby, 38-year-old mecca of American boys who like to hurtle down-hill in homemade racers, finds itself on an up-hill course.

It may be slowly coasting to a stop.

George W. Brittain, executive vice president of the Akron area Chamber of Commerce, is the man who has the task of finding a new angel to keep alive the dreams of more than 60,000 youngsters in 38 states and nine foreign countries.

"It's a challenge, but not one that's insurmountable," said Brittain.

He persuaded the Chevrolet Division of General Motors Corp. to sponsor the event one more time last year. It shelled out $500,000 for the spectacle. A 1973 sponsor must be found by Feb. 15.

Rooting on the sidelines are former Soap Box Derby champions like Terry Townsend of Anderson, Ind., who took the crown in 1957. The former winners, looking ahead to the possible death of the derby and looking back on its benefits, are sad, fearful, optimistic and nostalgic.

"It'd be quite a personal loss," said Townsend. "If you've lived with something like this . . . it's like cutting off an arm."

Kenneth Holmboe, the 1947 champion who now works as a researcher at Penn State, agreed. "I'd hate to see it end. I think we need the Derby, even if there isn't as much extravaganzas and pomp as there is now."

Herbert Muench Jr. of Hood River, Ore., the 1936 champion, said, "It teaches young men sportsmanship and fellowship."

"I was talking to Robert Turner, the first Derby champion, and he nearly cried," said Townsend. "He's lived the Derby for 35 years."

Turner, then 11, won the only Derby held in Dayton. He came over from Muncie, Ind.

Brittain has seen the Derby finale in Akron grow from 52 to 251 entrants, he wants to keep the Derby alive, and he's optimistic.

"All of a sudden," he said, "the whole thing will collapse and fit together."

But, Brittain has problems. First, the half million dollar cost. "You can't reduce the size of the event. It would lose its effectiveness. You're dealing with youth. You can never lose sight of being first class."

Brittain doesn't want to rush into agreements with sponsors who want to contract only for one year. And, he said, he may choose as many as four sponsors splitting the costs equally. "The only thing I'm trying to do," said Brittain, "is get the money. It's the problem of finding the right person at the right time."

More than 20 firms interested in sponsoring part or all of the Derby have approached Brittain, he said. The big problem is convincing them the boys get that much out of it.

"I got a tremendous amount of things out of the Derby, and I'm still getting benefits," said Townsend.

"I've learned a lot more about life than I would have. Building the car gives a youth a better relationship with his father. A youngster learns to be more versatile. It's more than sitting down, building a car and sitting on top of a hill in the racer."

Holmboe said: "It's something you put together with your own hands. There's a lot of hard work. When it comes time to race, it's all in your own hands. It's the first real big project a boy is exposed to, where he spends many hours before he gets to the actual end."

"There's an association of companionship between the father and the son in building the racer."

There are material advantages. Various firms give the finalists a variety of gifts, watches, cameras, racing shirts, tool kits and levis.

The Derby itself gives $30,000 in college scholarships.

In the days before the finale the kids and their parents are courted with films, dinners, parades, a Derby camp—a gala that never slows down. And, the kids meet celebrities who attend and participate in a special race.

If the Soap Box Derby makes it up the hill, there likely will be some changes. Holmboe and the study committee have recommended some.

"The rules say the racer has to be 100 per cent boy-built," he said. "Yet it's the type of project where the boy needs help. There's a lot of jobs that take a lot of hands."

"We have recommended that rule be knocked out and just make it home-built, encourage the father-son relationship and at the same time require the contestant to have

Stat Keepers For Tiger Basketball Team Are Girls

By DAVID AMEY Herald Staff Writer

Circleville High School is offering a non-curriculum education course for girls that isn't duplicated in many schools.

It teaches them how to become basketball statisticians.

The "course" actually started earlier this year when Tiger basketball coach John Lawhorn asked for volunteers to keep record of his players. When more girls than guys showed up to apply for the job, Coach Lawhorn naturally took the girls, six pretty seniors who look more like beauty queens than part of a basketball program.

"I was surprised," Lawhorn related after hearing the girls were interested in the job. "Then I was surprised at what they already knew about basketball, and now I'm surprised at the excellent job they are doing. And they have done an excellent job. Their stats are very accurate, they're very conscientious and besides that, they're good fans to have at all the games."

Saying they had a casual acquaintance with the game, having attended many, the six girls chosen for the job quickly learned there was more to keeping records than just marking down numbers.

They started by pairing in groups of two. One team records individual shooting performances for players on both teams, one pair records individual rebounds for both teams, and one pair records assists, turnovers and Big D's.

They learned the fine points of the game in two pre-season scrimmages. They discovered that a tip at the basket is not a rebound unless the player has control, they learned that an opponent charging into a defensive player is a Big D for that player, they learned about assists, shooting and all facets of the game.

Why? "Coach Lawhorn says statistics are a good measuring stick for the team's performance," said Debbie Radabaugh, one of the statisticians. "He said we can help find weaknesses in our team and the other teams we play by documenting each game. Then, when we play the other team again, we can see graphically what they will do."

A typical basketball game night finds the girls at the gymnasium about 6 p.m. to gather their performance sheets and copy starting lineups.

Then they apply their skills to the reserve game, giving it equal attention as they would the varsity.

Quarters and halftimes at both games are important to the girls. They have to total their charts and be prepared to start with fresh paper when the ball players are called back to action.

After both the reserve and varsity games, they transfer their figures to a master chart and give it to Coach Lawhorn for his analysis.

Debbie Radabaugh and Denise MacFadden, both 17, are in charge of assists, Big D's, and turnovers for both teams. They usually switch each game, one girl plotting Circleville one night and the opponent the next, so they can equally share the work load.

Debbie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Radabaugh, 499 E. Franklin St. She has a brother, Doug, who is a Tiger starter, and a sister, Sue, who is a cheerleader.

She is interested in art, primarily pottery and sketching, and plans to attend Otterbein or Wilmington College after graduation to major in art education.

A member of Girls Athletic Association at Circleville High School, Debbie, is secretary of the student council, treasurer of the South Central Ohio League Council, on the Red and Black staff and a player for the GAA basketball team.

Denise is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacFadden, 585 Edgewood Drive.

She plans to attend Miami University and major in political science, a necessary step towards a planned degree in juvenile law.

Denise is a member of the SOS Club at Circleville High School and the National Honor Society. She is listed in the Who's Who of American Teenagers and is a Girl Scout.

Tina Groves, 17, and Barbara Souders, 18, are assigned to record individual shooting performances, again on the tandem Circleville-opponent set-up.

Tina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Groves, 200 Sherwood Drive, spends all her spare time as an office girl in the high school.

She plans to attend Ohio University to become a medical technologist.

Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rosco Souders, 360 Brown St., is a member of the SOS Club, English Merit Society and Red and Black staff. She plans to attend Boston College and major in speech and hearing therapy.

Teresa Ankrom and Teresa Weethee, both 17, keep individual rebounds.

Miss Ankrom, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ankrom, 415 N. Pickaway St., plans to attend either Capital or Bowling Green to become a teacher of the deaf and hard of hearing.

She's a member of the SOS Club, GAA, band, and is Spirit Chairman of the student council. She is also a member of the Calvary United Methodist Church.

Miss Weethee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Weethee, 201 Nicholas Drive.

She serves as an office girl at the high school and is secretary to teacher Don Poling.

She plans to attend college, no particular one as of yet, and become a dental assistant.

Junior Tigers Win Mat Meet

The Tigers never trailed in the meet and at one time held an overwhelming 35-2 advantage.

Andy Smith, — 85-pound, and Tom England, heavyweight, both came up with pins for the Tigers. Gaining four-point decisions for Circleville were: Tom Marshall, 96-pound; Jeff Cochrell, 115-pound; and Sam Webb, 122-pound.

Still undefeated for the Tigers are Tom Marshall, Jim Cordle, John Payne and Jeff Cochrell.

Circleville will host Worthington 4 p.m. Friday at the junior high school.

To be eligible to play in the Senior Amateur golf championship a player must be at least 55 years of age on the date set for sectional qualifying.

Vikings Cop Pair From Westfall

Cleveland Crusaders Defeat Whalers, 5-4

Teays Valley's Junior High cage squad both came up with wins in a pair of games played at Westfall Tuesday.

The Viking seventh graders, 3-4, downed the Mustangs, 29-23; while the eighth graders, 2-7, garnered a 35-26 decision over Westfall.

The Teays Valley seventh graders led at each quarter, 8-4, 17-6, and 23-17. Jim Pabst and Bill McDowell each had 10 points for the Vikings, Rick Queen four, Dennis Werner three and Miles Glover two. Mowery led Westfall with eight markers.

Westfall's eighth graders led 4-2 at the first period buzzer, were on top 12-7 at the half but the Vikings took a 21-16 lead at the conclusion of the third canto.

Gregg Cline paced Teays Valley with 14 tallies, Tim Tosca had eight, Terry Trego and Mike Johnsen each added four, Charles Morrison had three and Jeff Voss two. Long had 10 points for the Mustangs.

Both Teays Valley squads will be at home 5:30 p.m. Thursday with Dublin.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Crusaders, riding the crest of a seven-game winning streak at home, have moved into first place in the Eastern Division of the World Hockey Association.

The Crusaders moved two points ahead of the New England Whalers with 5-4 overtime victory Tuesday night over the Winnipeg Jets. It was the first Cleveland triumph over the Jets in four outings and the 10th victory in the last 13 games for the Crusaders.

Top Kick Winner Of Latonia Feature

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Top Kick grabbed the featured $2,700 eighth race at Latonia Tuesday night by a neck over Open Challenge in a stretch run.

The winner covered the mile in 1:46 2-5 and paid $17.60, $7.20 and $3.80 after going off at 7-1.

Open Challenge returned $5.80 and $3.20 and Bay Guinea showed for $2.60.

Sportsmen Elect Officers

The Pickaway Farmers and Sportsman Assn. held its annual election of officers Thursday. The new officers are:

William H. Clark Jr., president; Larry F. Smith, vice president; Dick Redman, secretary; Dave Garrett, treasurer. New club directors elected are Jerry Sherwood and Gary Hinton. Representatives to the league of Ohio Sportsman are Walter G. Richard and H. W. Fraas.

Tom Weldon, Pickaway County game protector, presented to the club the Ohio Wildlife conservation plaque and certificate given by the Ohio Division of Wildlife for outstanding conservation achievements in Pickaway County.

It was announced the club will sponsor a high powered rifle school at the indoor range March 17. The club will also sponsor the Great Seal of Ohio Rifle Match Aug. 4-5 at Camp Sherman military range, Chillicothe. This will include 30 caliber firing at 100, 200 and 500 yards. The match will be open to shooters from all over the state.

The league of Ohio Sportsmen will hold its annual convention at Salt Fork State Park March 30 through April 1. Sportsman club officers and the local game protector plan to attend the banquet which will be held March 31.

The new club rifle range on Route 22 is now being completed and should be ready for club matches this fall.

Stat Keepers For Tiger Basketball Team Are Girls

By DAVID AMEY
Herald Staff Writer

Circleville High School is offering a non-curriculum education course for girls that isn't duplicated in many schools.

It teaches them how to become basketball statisticians.

The "course" actually started earlier this year when Tiger basketball coach John Lawhorn asked for volunteers to keep record of his players. When more girls than guys showed up to apply for the job, Coach Lawhorn naturally took the girls, six pretty seniors who look more like beauty queens than part of a basketball program.

"I was surprised," Lawhorn related after hearing the girls were interested in the job. "Then I was surprised at what they already knew about basketball, and now I'm surprised at the excellent job they are doing. And they have done an excellent job. Their stats are very accurate, they're very conscientious and besides that, they're good fans to have at all the games."

Saying they had a casual acquaintance with the game, having attended many, the six girls chosen for the job quickly learned there was more to keeping records than just marking down numbers.

They started by pairing in groups of two. One team records individual shooting performances for players on both teams, one pair records individual rebounds for both teams, and one pair records assists, turnovers and Big D's.

They learned the fine points of the game in two pre-season scrimmages. They discovered that a tip at the basket is not a rebound unless the player has control, they learned that an opponent charging into a defensive player is a Big D for that player, they learned about assists, shooting and all facets of the game.

Why? "Coach Lawhorn says statistics are a good measuring stick for the team's performance," said Debbie Radabaugh, one of the statisticians. "He said we can help find weaknesses in our team and the other teams we play by documenting each game. Then, when we play the other team again, we can see graphically what they will do."

A typical basketball game night finds the girls at the gymnasium about 6 p.m. to gather their performance sheets and copy starting lineups.

Then they apply their skills to the reserve game, giving it equal attention as they would the varsity.

Quarters and halftimes at both games are important to the girls. They have to total their charts and be prepared to start with fresh paper when the ball players are called back to action.

After both the reserve and varsity games, they transfer their figures to a master chart and give it to Coach Lawhorn for his analysis.

Debbie Radabaugh and Denise MacFadden, both 17, are in charge of assists, Big D's, and turnovers for both teams. They usually switch each game, one girl plotting Circleville one night and the opponent the next, so they can equally share the work load.

Debbie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Radabaugh, 499 E. Franklin St. She has a brother, Doug, who is a Tiger starter, and a sister, Sue, who is a cheerleader.

She is interested in art, primarily pottery and sketching, and plans to attend Otterbein or Wilmington College after graduation to major in art education.

A member of Girls Athletic Association at Circleville High School, Debbie, is secretary of the student council, treasurer of the South Central Ohio League Council, on the Red and Black staff and a player for the GAA basketball team.

Denise is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacFadden, 585 Edgewood Drive.

She plans to attend Miami University and major in political science, a necessary step towards a planned degree in juvenile law.

Denise is a member of the SOS Club at Circleville High School and the National Honor Society. She is listed in the Who's Who of American Teenagers and is a Girl Scout.

Tina Groves, 17, and Barbara Souders, 18, are assigned to record individual shooting performances, again on the tandem Circleville-opponent set-up.

Tina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

James Groves, 200 Sherwood Drive, spends all her spare time as an office girl in the high school.

She plans to attend Ohio University to become a medical technologist.

Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rosco Souders, 360 Brown St., is a member of the SOS Club, English Merit Society and Red and Black staff. She plans to attend Boston College and major in speech and hearing therapy.

Teresa Ankrom and Teresa Weethee, both 17, keep individual rebounds.

Miss Ankrom, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ankrom, 415 N. Pickaway St., plans to attend either Capital or Bowling Green to become a teacher of the deaf and hard of hearing.

She's a member of the SOS Club, GAA, band, and is Spirit Chairman of the student council. She is also a member of the Calvary United Methodist Church.

Miss Weethee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Weethee, 201 Nicholas Drive.

She serves as an office girl at the high school and is secretary to teacher Don Poling.

She plans to attend college, no particular one as of yet, and become a dental assistant.

Groves, Barbara Souders, Debbie Radabaugh, Teresa Ankrom, Teresa Weethee, and Denise MacFadden.

Junior Tigers Win Mat Meet

Circleville's Junior High wrestling team garnered its fourth straight win Tuesday with a 44-17 decision over Hilliard.

The Tigers never trailed in the meet and at one time held an overwhelming 35-2 advantage.

Andy Smith, — 85-pound, and Tom England, heavyweight, both came up with pins for the Tigers. Gaining four-point decisions for Circleville were: Tom Marshall, 96-pound; Jeff Cochrell, 115-pound; and Sam Webb, 122-pound.

Still undefeated for the Tigers are Tom Marshall, Jim Cordle, John Payne and Jeff Cochrell.

Circleville will host Worthington 4 p.m. Friday at the junior high school.

To be eligible to play in the Senior Amateur golf championship a player must be at least 55 years of age on the date set for sectional qualifying.

Vikings Cop Pair From Westfall

Teays Valley's Junior High cage squad both came up with wins in a pair of games played at Westfall Tuesday. The Viking seventh graders, 3-4, downed the Mustangs, 29-23; while the eighth graders, 2-7, garnered a 35-26 decision over Westfall.

The Teays Valley seventh graders led at each quarter, 8-4, 17-6, and 23-17. Jim Pabst and Bill McDowell each had 10 points for the Vikings, Rick Queen four, Dennis Werner three and Miles Glover two. Mowery led Westfall with eight markers.

Westfall's eighth graders led 4-2 at the first period buzzer, were on top 12-7 at the half but the Vikings took a 21-16 lead at the conclusion of the third canto.

Gregg Cline paced Teays Valley with 14 tallies, Tim Tosca had eight, Terry Trego and Mike Johnson each added four, Charles Morrison had three and Jeff Voss two. Long had 10 points for the Mustangs.

Both Teays Valley squads will be at home 5:30 p.m. Thursday with Dublin.

Cleveland Crusaders Defeat Whalers, 5-4

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Crusaders, riding the crest of a seven-game winning streak at home, have moved into first place in the Eastern Division of the World Hockey Association.

The Crusaders moved two points ahead of the New England Whalers with 5-4 overtime victory Tuesday night over the Winnipeg Jets. It was the first Cleveland triumph over the Jets in four outings and the 10th victory in the last 13 games for the Crusaders.

Top Kick Winner Of Latonia Feature

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Top Kick grabbed the featured $2,700 eighth race at Latonia Tuesday night by a neck over Open Challenge in a stretch run.

The winner covered the mile in 1:46 2-5 and paid $17.60, $7.20 and $3.80 after going off at 7-1.

Open Challenge returned $5.80 and $3.20 and Bay Guinea showed for $2.60.

Sportsmen Elect Officers

The Pickaway Farmers and Sportsman Assn. held its annual election of officers Thursday. The new officers are:

William H. Clark Jr., president; Larry F. Smith, vice president; Dick Redman, secretary; Dave Garrett, treasurer. New club directors elected are Jerry Sherwood and Gary Hinton. Representatives to the league of Ohio Sportsman are Walter G. Richard and H. W. Fraas.

Tom Weldon, Pickaway County game protector, presented to the club the Ohio Wildlife conservation plaque and certificate given by the Ohio Division of Wildlife for outstanding conservation achievements in Pickaway County.

It was announced the club will sponsor a high powered rifle school at the indoor range March 17. The club will also sponsor the Great Seal of Ohio Rifle Match Aug. 4-5 at Camp Sherman military range, Chillicothe. This will include 30 caliber firing at 100, 200 and 500 yards. The match will be open to shooters from all over the state.

The league of Ohio Sportsmen will hold its annual convention at Salt Fork State Park March 30 through April 1. Sportsman club officers and the local game protector plan to attend the banquet which will be held March 31.

The new club rifle range on Route 22 is now being completed and should be ready for club matches this fall.

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to take time out to get the answers for which you have been searching by investigating all phases of whatever activities that are vital to your progress. Show devotion to those close to you. Avoid being too preoccupied with your own affairs.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use tact in making collections and then pay your bills that are pressing. Don't judge your mate harshly, but give credit where credit is due. Avoid one who doesn't appreciate you as you deserve.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen carefully to what associates have to say and cooperate with them instead of being so self-opinionated. One who opposes you should be avoided. A kinder attitude toward mate is wise.

GEMINI (May to June 21) Start working on those tasks ahead of you instead of running off on some tangent. Take the health treatments you need and stop putting them off. Take it easy tonight. Take care of correspondence.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Although fun is on your mind, be sure to handle obligations that are important. You can enjoy recreations later in the day. Show patience with mate at this time. Plan to save more money.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have to be kind and gentle at home or much trouble could ensue there before the day is over. Don't rake up old coals and all is fine. Plan time to arrange the future better. Relax tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Much care in motion must be exercised now or you could get into a great deal of trouble. A kind word will turn away wrath. Don't jeopardize the friendship of persons who mean much to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You may think that money can buy you anything you want, but this is not the case. Use ethical methods in business dealings and be happier. A financial expert can give you advice on handling a problem.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have good ideas but others are not in the mood to listen to them now, so wait for a better time to express yourself. Take time to make yourself look more attractive. More study is wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may think you have too many responsibilities, but you can easily handle them and should do so now. You can also lend a helping hand to others with their problems. Have a happy evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure an opponent does not try to force you into a situation you don't like. Show that you have willpower. If you cannot be cheerful, sidestep a social invitation, otherwise go and have fun.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make sure you use more than regular care in handling credit, vocational and business affairs or bigwigs will surely criticize you. Show that you are conscientious. Don't be harsh on others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study a new plan you want to put in operation and get rid of the bugs in it. Avoid loss this way. A new ally can give you the right pointers and help you become more successful with this plan.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those young people with much determination to get things done and can have much success in life, provided you teach fine ethics and give good religious background. Expose to the finest types of individuals, otherwise the wrong kind of people could be harmful to your progeny. A fine citizen here who will be a real inspiration to others in the community.

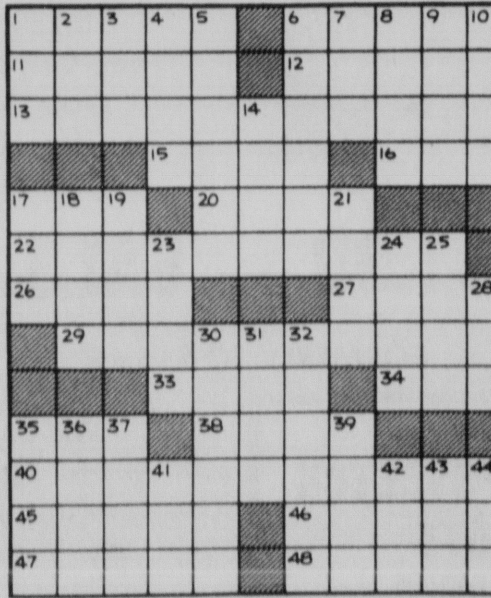

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson was pale, smoking heavily again and didn't appear in good health when interviewed last Jan. 12 by CBS' Walter Cronkite.

Yet, his conversation during the interview was lively and his movements around the LBJ ranch at that time weren't those of a dying man, Cronkite recalled Tuesday.

Nor, Cronkite said, did Johnson express any premonition of death.

"I've heard that story from others who've been down there, but I didn't hear him say anything like that while I was there," the newsman said. "In fact, it was something of the opposite.

"He talked about future plans, not about things of great import, but things like selling cattle and land purchases and sales."

The exclusive interview, which took two hours to film, was to have been the fifth in a series of filmed conversations Cronkite has had with Johnson over the last two years.

It now is the final show in the series. CBS is calling it, "LBJ: The Last Interview." The network will broadcast it Feb. 1 from 10 to 11 p.m. EST.

"He looked like he was not in the best of health," Cronkite said of Johnson's appearance during the interview at the LBJ Ranch.

"As a matter of fact, while we were interviewing, he had a couple of little angina seizures," he said, referring to the severe heart pains the former President occasionally suffered.

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute
GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to take time out to get the answers for which you have been searching by investigating all phases of whatever activities that are vital to your progress. Show devotion to those close to you. Avoid being too preoccupied with your own affairs.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use tact in making collections and then pay your bills that are pressing. Don't judge your mate harshly, but give credit where credit is due. Avoid one who doesn't appreciate you as you deserve.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen carefully to what associates have to say and cooperate with them instead of being so self-opinionated. One who opposes you should be avoided. A kinder attitude toward mate is wise.

GEMINI (May to June 21) Start working on those tasks ahead of you instead of running off on some tangent. Take the health treatments you need and stop putting them off. Take it easy tonight. Take care of correspondence.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Although fun is on your mind, be sure to handle obligations that are important. You can enjoy recreations later in the day. Show patience with mate at this time. Plan to save more money.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have to be kind and gentle at home or much trouble could ensue there before the day is over. Don't rake up old coals and all is fine. Plan time to arrange the future better. Relax tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Much care in motion must be exercised now or you could get into a great deal of trouble. A kind word will turn away wrath. Don't jeopardize the friendship of persons who mean much to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You may think that money can buy you anything you want, but this is not the case. Use ethical methods in business dealings and be happier. A financial expert can give you advice on handling a problem.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have good ideas but others are not in the mood to listen to them now, so wait for a better time to express yourself. Take time to make yourself look more attractive. More study is wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may think you have too many responsibilities, but you can easily handle them and should do so now. You can also lend a helping hand to others with their problems. Have a happy evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure an opponent does not try to force you into a situation you don't like. Show that you have willpower. If you cannot be cheerful, sidestep a social invitation, otherwise go and have fun.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make sure you use more than regular care in handling credit, vocational and business affairs or bigwigs will surely criticize you. Show that you are conscientious. Don't be harsh on others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study a new plan you want to put in operation and get rid of the bugs in it. Avoid loss this way. A new ally can give you the right pointers and help you become more successful with this plan.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those young people with much determination to get things done and can have much success in life, provided you teach fine ethics and give good religious background. Expose to the finest types of individuals, otherwise the wrong kind of people could be harmful to your progeny. A fine citizen here who will be a real inspiration to others in the community.

Historians To Ponder What Went Wrong In Indochina

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

What went wrong for the United States in Indochina?

How could intentions regarded at the outset as honorable by most Americans bring results that ultimately would be widely denounced around the world?

Historians will be a long time probing the evidence. They are likely to label a lot of key U.S. actions and decisions as unqualified and extravagantly costly blunders.

From the vantage point of hindsight, some of the early judgments already being made go something like this:

1. Early alarm signals went unheeded.

Early in the game, as Americans began to get involved in a war they didn't understand, some U.S. leaders who would share responsibility for the policy of involvement were themselves fearful that the United States was painting itself into a corner. Those same leaders eventually helped wield the paintbrush.

An alarm signal came in November 1961 in a cable to President John F. Kennedy from Gen. Maxwell Taylor. Assessing the situation in Vietnam, Taylor noted that an engagement of U.S. prestige likely would be deepened proportionately by the number of U.S. troops committed.

If results were not achieved quickly, he said, "it will be difficult to resist the pressure to reinforce."

Another alarm was sounded that same month by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara. He told the President in a memorandum that introduction of a sizable U.S. force would not have decisive effect, but would make it almost certain that the United States would "get increasingly mired down in an inconclusive struggle."

2. The United States, with its eyes open, went into a war that by some standards was unwinnable.

As late as June 1965, after the big escalation had started, a memorandum by Secretary of State Dean Rusk noted:

"Once we suffer large casualties we will have started a well-nigh irreversible process. Our involvement will be so great that we cannot without national humiliation stop short of achieving our complete objectives. Of the two possibilities, I think humiliation would be the more likely than achievement of our objectives — even after we have paid terrible costs."

3. U.S. Southeast Asia policy was murky.

There was hardly any Southeast Asia policy until Korea caused U.S. planners to improvise hastily. What resulted was closely connected to a fear that another area might be "lost" as China was "lost" to the Communists.

The China episode had produced political dynamite in the McCarthy era. Thereafter, the reading of U.S. cold war stakes became a matter of assuming a world Communist goal to gobble up Asia. When Lyndon B. Johnson became President, he said he would not be the man to see Southeast Asia go "the way China went."

4. The United States was embarrassed by its own power.

Involvement in an undeclared war meant war little by little, unsupported by any homefront mobilization. The expressed U.S. anxiety was to prevent a wide war.

The Americans had power enough to destroy all Vietnam at one blow many times over, but could not and would not use it. Thus, at the start, the United States was getting itself gradually drawn into a partial war, limited to what were regarded as minimal measures to stop the Communists.

5. Americans were confused and bewildered.

Until 1963, few Americans had any idea where Indochina might be on the map. They became acutely aware of it with the crisis of November 1963, when President Ngo Dinh Diem was assassinated. The Communists chose that time of upheaval to step up pressure. Gradually, Americans became aware they were involved in a shadowy, hit-and-run jungle guerrilla conflict.

Americans were involved with an Asian ally who could be the most frustrating of partners. Early in the game observers on the scene wondered who was in charge: the U.S. commander, the U.S. ambassador or the mixed-up Saigon regime.

6. Prospective costs outweighed U.S. interests and objectives.

Apparently, costs and interests were away out of balance. The United States did not appear to have a clearly defined objective other than keeping the Communist out of control of the South.

However, once the United States pronounced Vietnam vital to its interests, it seemed necessary to hold on at any cost. Until recently, the idea that Vietnam was vital to American interests was automatically accepted gospel in Washington.

7. There was a lack of coherent and consistent strategy.

The strategy seemed just to grow, willy nilly, with the increasing involvement. Soon the United States was, figuratively speaking, using sledgehammers to kill fleas. Enormously expensive planes and military hardware were committed to flattening huts, blasting sampans and attacking jungle shadows. It was testimony both to the lack of American experience in Southeast Asia and a U.S. urge to apply technological power to vexing problems.

8. The Americans failed to learn from the Malaya experience of the early 1950s.

The insurgency on the Malay Peninsula had been beaten by clear-and-hold tactics, using the guerrillas' own methods against them. In Vietnam, the Americans relied on enormous firepower, incredibly powerful air fleets, a naval armada, swarms of helicopters and jeeps and all manner of other hardware.

In turn, this cataract of material and men pouring into the little country produced a social upheaval and along with it all manner of corruption.

The power also did considerable propaganda harm through the wrecking of villages, suffering inflicted on civilians and bombing errors causing heavy casualties.

9. The cost of bombing the North balanced against its usefulness.

Some competent observers say the bombing of the North may have been the greatest strategic blunder of the war. With respect to impairing the North's fighting capacity, the effect seemed negligible.

In the long run the bombing appeared to react against the United States, first by hardening North Vietnamese morale and then by bringing down wide condemnation. If the United States was trying to bomb Hanoi to the negotiating table before 1968, the reality was that after that year's Tet offensive the United States itself was the one that was pushed in the direction of the table.

10. The aim to make North Vietnam pay dearly backfired.

The policy is regarded now by many to have been counterproductive and another error. The more price the Communists paid, the more stake they had in sticking it out.

Open societies are no match for totalitarian ones when it comes to propaganda warfare. The North Vietnamese were not obliged to be responsible to an electorate. The leaders could continue tenaciously to try to justify the investment in their ambition to rule the whole country.

11. The Americans lost sight of their immediate goal.

All presidents involved in the Vietnam situation had said the U.S. aim simply was to make it possible for the South Vietnamese to choose their own future without interference. The Americans insisted it was the Vietnamese who had to be responsible for Vietnam.

The war progressed in an opposite direction, however. The South Vietnamese became all client, and for a long time everything depended on the Americans. South Vietnam's presidents and politicians became heavily dependent upon American support.

At the same time, an American stake developed in keeping the Saigon regime in power, to an extent that it seemed at times the Saigon tail was wagging the U.S. dog.

City School Board Sets 1973 Opening For Sept. 5

Action by the Circleville Board of Education last night set the opening of school for the 1973-74 school year Sept. 5.

The board gave tentative approval to a school calendar, but firmly established the date for school opening. The all-district teachers' meeting will be held the day following Labor Day, on Sept. 4.

Abortion Ruling Reaction Continues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The U. S. Supreme Court's ruling that abortion is a private matter was labeled "disappointment" and "a shock" by area Roman Catholic bishops, and even drew a prediction of God's wrath on America from one.

Archbishop Joseph Bernardin, prelate of the 550,000-member Archdiocese of Cincinnati, said the high court based its decision on arguments that "completely overlook the God-given right which cannot be violated by any human authority — the right to life of the unborn fetus."

Bishop Richard Ackerman, of the 100,000-member Diocese of Covington, Ky., said he was joining other bishops to rally around John Cardinal Kroll of Philadelphia to protest the decision.

He called the decision "not only a bitter disappointment, but a shock for all who believe in and defend the right to life of any individual of whatever age or circumstance of the environment."

In Columbus, Bishop Clarence Elwell suggested the Supreme Court decision might make America subject to God's wrath.

"Nazi Germany took for itself the power of life and death because of ethnic reasons, and history has condemned Germany justly," he said.

"I'm afraid that history is going to condemn us, and I'm also afraid God's punishment will be visited upon us for this decision."

Bernardin, who was recently installed as the Cincinnati prelate after leaving his post of secretary of the National Council of Catholic Bishops in Washington, retains the title of general secretary.

He complained the decision severely limits a state in "restricting the evil of abortion."

"The decision becomes even more incomprehensible in setting a three-month cutoff which becomes the dividing line between what is permissible and what is not."

"Growth and development of the fetus surely indicates the presence of life. Human life, at any stage, cannot be subjected to such arbitrary criteria," he said.

Three Cars Looted In GE Parking Lot

Circleville police are investigating the theft of tape players, speakers and tapes from three cars in the General Electric parking lot Tuesday evening.

Cars, belonging to Loduie Saxour, New Holland, Glen E. Metzler, 675 Hawthorne Drive, and Carol Copenhaver, Chillicothe, were entered and the items taken. Total value was set at $270.

An additional half day parent-teacher conference date was set Feb. 7 for kindergarten classes only. Morning kindergarten classes will not meet that date for teachers to schedule conferences with parents.

Board members approved group term life insurance and major medical insurance for all regular employees of the Circleville City Schools. The board agreed to pay the life insurance premiums and offered paid major medical coverage at a single rate. Cost of major medical under the family plan would be deducted from employees' wages. The contract for the insurance was signed with the Educator and Executive Insurance Co. of Columbus.

Resignations were accepted from two members of the teaching staff. Mrs. Martha Kimpel, Title I Developmental Reading teacher, requested release from her contract to move to Zanesville where her husband is now employed. Her resignation was accepted effective Jan. 26.

The second resignation was accepted from James Funk as assistant baseball coach. Funk asked to be relieved of coaching duties as he is attending evening classes at an Ohio University branch.

Mrs. Kathleen Benson, who holds a bachelor degree from Bradley University, was employed to replace Mrs. Kimpel.

Three names were added to the substitute list: Roger Geise, secondary level; Deborah Dick, elementary; Teresa Allen, teacher aide.

Approval was given for the following to attend professional meetings:

Donald Metzler, computer Applications for Handicapped Children, Jan. 19, Columbus; Richard Risher, American College Testing Program, Jan. 9, Capital University; Donald Poling University Research Farm in Indiana, Jan. 23;

Patricia Southward, Winter Meeting School Psychologists, OSU Jan. 19; Sharon Ryan, OASL leadership conference, Feb. 23, Atwood Lake; James Lint, OSU Track Clinic, Jan. 26; Gary Dean, State Band Clinic at BGSU; John Lawhorn, state Tournament Clinic in Columbus March 23 and basketball clinic in Cincinnati, May 7.

A next textbook series for students in elementary grades was adopted to be used in correlation with the present science and health program.

A contract was awarded to Richard M. Smith Roofing, Inc. of Columbus to make various small roof repairs at the junior high, Nicholas Drive and Atwater schools. Smith's bid of $462.34 was lower than the bid of $462.34 was lower than the only other bid of $682 submitted by J. E. Peters.

Dale Delong was absent from the meeting due to illness and Forrest Brown was in Indiana at the Purdue research farm, so the three board members in attendance were Ruth Kraus, Tom Elsea and Robert Liggett. Also present were Superintendent Fritz Jacobs, Elementary Supervisor Donald Metzler, CTA President Evelyn Ralston and Clerk Mary Ellen Rader.

PATROL AWARD—Ptl. Lowell P. Hardesty, right, was elected by his fellow Patrol officers of the Circleville Highway Patrol Post as "Patrolman of the Year." Hardesty was presented a framed citation Tuesday by Captain Richard Saunders, center, commander of District VI, for exhibiting the qualities of an "ideal" patrolman during 1972. Hardesty was chosen for this honor by vote of Patrol officers on duty at the Circleville post, commanded by Lt. Wayne Henry, left.

Hardesty Is Selected "Patrolman Of Year"

Ptl. Lowell P. Hardesty, a five-year veteran of the Ohio State Highway Patrol, was named by his fellow officers as Post 65's outstanding patrolman for 1972.

Ptl. Hardesty was presented Tuesday with a citation honoring him as the "Outstanding Patrolman" for the past year at the Circleville post. Making the presentation was the district commander, Captain Richard Saunders.

The ballot for top patrolman is a vote of honor for the selected officer, who has earned the respect of his fellow Ohio State Highway Patrolmen in his work. He is judged on his methods in investigations and assistance to the public, general attitude and appearance and devotion to his job.

Selection can be considered to mean that the patrolman has come closest to meeting the standards of the "ideal" patrolman, based on the judgement of other officers.

Hardesty lives at 259 Sherwood Drive with his wife Diane and their children Lee, 3 years and Amy, 18 months.

He began his Patrol service five years ago at the Hiram post, working on the east end of the Ohio Turnpike. He has been associated with the local

1. Early alarm signals went unheeded.

Early in the game, as Americans began to get involved in a war they didn't understand, some U.S. leaders who would share responsibility for the policy of involvement were themselves painting itself into a corner. Those same leaders eventually helped wield the paintbrush.

An alarm signal came in November 1961 in a cable to President John F. Kennedy from Gen. Maxwell Taylor. Assessing the situation in Vietnam, Taylor noted that an engagement of U.S. prestige likely would be deepened proportionately by the number of U.S. troops committed.

If results were not achieved quickly, he said, "it will be difficult to resist the pressure to reinforce."

Another alarm was sounded that same month by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara. He told the President in a memorandum that introduction of a sizable U.S. force would not have decisive effect, but would make it almost certain that the United States would "get increasingly mired down in an inconclusive struggle."

2. The United States, with its eyes open, went into a war that by some standards was unwinnable.

PATROL AWARD—Ptl. Lowell P. Hardesty, right, was elected by his fellow Patrol officers of the Circleville Highway Patrol Post as "Patrolman of the Year." Hardesty was presented a framed citation Tuesday by Captain Richard Saunders, center, commander of District VI, for exhibiting the qualities of an "ideal" patrolman during 1972. Hardesty was chosen for this honor by vote of Patrol officers on duty at the Circleville post, commanded by Lt. Wayne Henry, left.

Hardesty Is Selected "Patrolman Of Year"

Ptl. Lowell P. Hardesty, a five-year veteran of the Ohio State Highway Patrol, was named by his fellow officers as Post 65's outstanding patrolman for 1972.

Ptl. Hardesty was presented Tuesday with a citation honoring him as the "Outstanding Patrolman" for the past year at the Circleville post. Making the presentation was the district commander, Captain Richard Saunders.

The ballot for top patrolman is a vote of honor for the selected officer, who has earned the respect of his fellow Ohio State Highway Patrolmen in his work. He is judged on his methods in investigations and assistance to the public, general attitude and appearance and devotion to his job.

Selection can be considered to mean that the patrolman has come closest to meeting the standards of the "ideal" patrolman, based on the judgement of other officers.

Hardesty lives at 259 Sherwood Drive with his wife Diane and their children Lee, 3 years and Amy, 18 months.

He began his Patrol service five years ago at the Hiram post, working on the east end of the Ohio Turnpike. He has been associated with the local

Berger Appointed

To Defend Teets

Allan Berger has been appointed defense attorney for John Leslie Teets, who is facing a 1959 indictment for the murder of his wife.

Berger's appointment was made Tuesday by Judge William Ammer.

As late as June 1965, after the big escalation had started, a memorandum by Secretary of State Dean Rusk noted:

"Once we suffer large casualties we will have started a well-nigh irreversible process. Our involvement will be so great that we cannot without national humiliation stop short of achieving our complete objectives. Of the two possibilities, I think humiliation would be the more likely than achievement of our objectives — even after we have paid terrible costs."

3. U.S. Southeast Asia policy was murky.

There was hardly any Southeast Asia policy until Korea caused U.S. planners to improvise hastily. What resulted was closely connected to a fear that another area might be "lost" as China was "lost" to the Communists.

The China episode had produced political dynamite in the McCarthy era. Thereafter, the reading of U.S. cold war stakes became a matter of assuming a world Communist goal to gobble up Asia. When Lyndon B. Johnson became President, he said he would not be the man to see Southeast Asia go "the way China went."

4. The United States was embarrassed by its own power.

Involvement in an undeclared war meant war little by little, unsupported by any homefront mobilization. The expressed U.S. anxiety was to prevent a wide war.

The Americans had power enough to destroy all Vietnam at one blow many times over, but could not and would not use it. Thus, at the start, the United States was getting itself gradually drawn into a partial war, limited to what were regarded as minimal measures to stop the Communists.

5. Americans were confused and bewildered.

Until 1963, few Americans had any idea where Indochina might be on the map. They became acutely aware of it with the crisis of November 1963, when President Ngo Dinh Diem was assassinated. The Communists chose that time of upheaval to step up pressure. Gradually, Americans became aware they were involved in a shadowy, hit-and-run jungle guerrilla conflict.

Americans were involved with an Asian ally who could be the most frustrating of partners. Early in the game observers on the scene wondered who was in charge: the U.S. commander, the U.S. ambassador or the mixed-up Saigon regime.

6. Prospective costs outweighed U.S. interests and objectives.

Apparently, costs and interests were away out of balance. The United States did not appear to have a clearly defined objective other than keeping the Communist out of control of the South.

However, once the United States pronounced Vietnam vital to its interests, it seemed necessary to hold on at any cost. Until recently, the idea that Vietnam was vital to American interests was automatically accepted gospel in Washington.

7. There was a lack of coherent and consistent strategy.

The strategy seemed just to grow, willy nilly, with the increasing involvement. Soon the United States was, figuratively speaking, using sledgehammers to kill fleas. Enormously expensive planes and military hardware were committed to flattening huts, blasting sampans and attacking jungle shadows. It was testimony both to the lack of American experience in Southeast Asia and a U.S. urge to apply technological power to vexing problems.

8. The Americans failed to learn from the Malaya experience of the early 1950s.

The insurgency on the Malay Peninsula had been beaten by clear-and-hold tactics, using the guerrillas' own methods against them. In Vietnam, the Americans relied on enormous firepower, incredibly powerful air fleets, a naval armada, swarms of helicopters and jeeps and all manner of other hardware.

In turn, this cataract of material and men pouring into the little country produced a social upheaval and along with it all manner of corruption.

The power also did considerable propaganda harm through the wrecking of villages, suffering inflicted on civilians and bombing errors causing heavy casualties.

9. The cost of bombing the North balanced against its usefulness.

Some competent observers say the bombing of the North may have been the greatest strategic blunder of the war. With respect to impairing the North's fighting capacity, the effect seemed negligible.

In the long run the bombing appeared to react against the United States, first by hardening North Vietnamese morale and then by bringing down wide condemnation. If the United States was trying to bomb Hanoi to the negotiating table before 1968, the reality was that after that year's Tet offensive the United States itself was the one that was pushed in the direction of the table.

10. The aim to make North Vietnam pay dearly backfired.

The policy is regarded now by many to have been counterproductive and another error. The more price the Communists paid, the more stake they had in sticking it out.

Open societies are no match for totalitarian ones when it comes to propaganda warfare. The North Vietnamese were not obliged to be responsible to an electorate. The leaders could continue tenaciously to try to justify the investment in their ambition to rule the whole country.

11. The Americans lost sight of their immediate goal.

All presidents involved in the Vietnam situation had said the U.S. aim simply was to make it possible for the South Vietnamese to choose their own future without interference. The Americans insisted it was the Vietnamese who had to be responsible for Vietnam.

The war progressed in an opposite direction, however. The South Vietnamese became all client, and for a long time everything depended on the Americans. South Vietnam's presidents and politicians became heavily dependent upon American support.

At the same time, an American stake developed in keeping the Saigon regime in power, to an extent that it seemed at times the Saigon tail was wagging the U.S. dog.

City School Board Sets 1973 Opening For Sept. 5

Action by the Circleville Board of Education last night set the opening of school for the 1973-74 school year Sept. 5.

The board gave tentative approval to a school calendar, but firmly established the date for school opening. The all-district teachers' meeting will be held the day following Labor Day, on Sept. 4.

Abortion Ruling Reaction Continues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The U. S. Supreme Court's ruling that abortion is a private matter was labled "disappointment" and "a shock" by area Roman Catholic bishops, and even drew a prediction of God's wrath on America from one.

Archbishop Joseph Bernardin, prelate of the 550,000-member Archdiocese of Cincinnati, said the high court based its decision on arguments that "completely overlook the God-given right which cannot be violated by any human authority — the right to life of the unborn fetus."

Bishop Richard Ackerman, of the 100,000-member Diocese of Covington, Ky., said he was joining other bishops to rally around John Cardinal Kroll of Philadelphia to protest the decision.

He called the decision "not only a bitter disappointment, but a shock for all who believe in and defend the right to life of any individual of whatever age or circumstance of the environment."

In Columbus, Bishop Clarence Elwell suggested the Supreme Court decision might make America subject to God's wrath.

"Nazi Germany took for itself the power of life and death because of ethnic reasons, and history has condemned Germany justly," he said.

"I'm afraid that history is going to condemn us, and I'm also afraid God's punishment will be visited upon us for this decision."

Bernardin, who was recently installed as the Cincinnati prelate after leaving his post of secretary of the National Council of Catholic Bishops in Washington, retains the title of general secretary.

He complained the decision severely limits a state in "restricting the evil of abortion."

"The decision becomes even more incomprehensible in setting a three-month cutoff which becomes the dividing line between what is permissible and what is not."

"Growth and development of the fetus surely indicates the presence of life. Human life, at any stage, cannot be subjected to such arbitrary criteria," he said.

Three Cars Looted

In GE Parking Lot

Circleville police are investigating the theft of tape players, speakers and tapes from three cars in the General Electric parking lot Tuesday evening. Cars, belonging to Loduie Saxour, New Holland, Glen E. Metzler, 675 Hawthorne Drive, and Carol Copenhaver, Chillicothe, were entered and the items taken. Total value was set at $270.

An additional half day parent-teacher conference date was set Feb. 7 for kindergarten classes only. Morning kindergarten classes will not meet that date for teachers to schedule conferences with parents.

Board members approved group term life insurance and major medical insurance for all regular employees of the Circleville City Schools. The board agreed to pay the life insurance premiums and offered paid major medical coverage at a single rate. Cost of major medical under the family plan would be deducted from employees' wages. The contract for the insurance was signed with the Educator and Executive Insurance Co. of Columbus.

Resignations were accepted from two members of the teaching staff. Mrs. Martha Kimpel, Title I Developmental Reading teacher, requested release from her contract to move to Zanesville where her husband is now employed. Her resignation was accepted effective Jan. 26.

The second resignation was accepted from James Funk as assistant baseball coach. Funk asked to be relieved of coaching duties as he is attending evening classes at an Ohio University branch.

Mrs. Kathleen Benson, who holds a bachelor degree from Bradley University, was employed to replace Mrs. Kimpel.

Three names were added to the substitute list: Roger Geise, secondary level; Deborah Dick, elementary; Teresa Allen, teacher aide.

Approval was given for the following to attend professional meetings:

Donald Metzler, computer Applications for Handicapped Children, Jan. 19, Columbus; Richard Risher, American College Testing Program, Jan. 9, Capital University; Donald Poling University Research Farm in Indiana, Jan. 23;

Patricia Southward, Winter Meeting School Psychologists, OSU Jan. 19; Sharon Ryan, OASL leadership conference, Feb. 23, Atwood Lake; James Lint, OSU Track Clinic, Jan. 26; Gary Dean, State Band Clinic at BGSU; John Lawhorn, state Tournament Clinic in Columbus March 23 and basketball clinic in Cincinnati, May 7.

A next textbook series for students in elementary grades was adopted to be used in correlation with the present science and health program.

A contract was awarded to Richard M. Smith Roofing, Inc. of Columbus to make various small roof repairs at the junior high, Nicholas Drive and Atwater schools. Smith's bid of $462.34 was lower than the bid f $462.34 was lower than the only other bid of $682 submitted by J. E. Peters.

Dale Delong was absent from the meeting due to illness and Forrest Brown was in Indiana at the Purdue research farm, so the three board members in attendance were Ruth Kraus, Tom Elsea and Robert Liggett.

Also present were Superintendent Fritz Jacobs, Elementary Supervisor Donald Metzler, CTA President Evelyn Ralston and Clerk Mary Ellen Rader.
